each day is a part of something BIG

Everything we work for in this "little town of ours" is BIGGER than any one of us. An education. A state championship. A great experience. An unforgettable moment. A future. All 3,825 of us – students, staff, and faculty–work every day to make this community a better place and to make sure that every one of us is preparing for the road ahead.

The 69 group activities and 17 athletic teams play a role in this preparation. All 211 teachers who try each day to show us something new or teach us something about our lives and what we have in front of us.

Huddle Up Against Hunger. It was BIG this year! We raised 39,888 cans for 84 families in our community. And Mr. Burchett had to be a goalie at the Warrior on Ice Night at Pepsi Coliseum!

Within the past couple of years, Warren has won several different state championships. Boys cross country. Girls track. Boys track. Brain Game. Winterguard. Speech Team. The Drum Line too. The newspaper even won the Hoosier Star Award. Twice. So many people were a part of those.

And we cannot forget the football team. A four-peat. And an undefeated season! We helped. All of us. The football players gave their all every game while the 12th man came out to pack the stands.

The Walker Career Center. It is 30 years old this year. That is 30 years of helping us determine our futures. The WCC gives each of us the opportunity to get experience in what we could be for the rest of our lives.

Each of us is a part of every person we meet. From everyday acquaintances to life-long friends, we all have some sort of effect on everyone we cross paths with. We are a part of their lives. That's BIG! It's major. You could be everything to them. You never know, but in the end, you are a part of someone's life. And that is important.

Passion is big. The passion this faculty has for its students, the love we have for our friends. It all makes up what we call our high school experience. It all revolves around the people we share it with. Make it something to share. Something to look back on and laugh, or cry, or just smile at.

The crowd cheers on the Warrior football team during one of their regular season games. The team went on to win their fourth consecutive state title.

what else is BIG?

Our school spirit. It's BIG! Every Friday during the football season we dress up. Paint our faces and even our bodies. Clad in black and gold, we show up to give everyone a taste of our school spirit. On JSN Wednesdays, the whole school is a sea of red. It shows every day. We have Warren Pride. And everyone can see it.

Think about it. There must be some reason each of us comes back to this "little town of ours" every day. For some, it may be as simple as trying to please our parents. For others, it may be as important as trying to change the world we live in or prove to everyone around us that we can make it. It may even be as geeky as a burning love for math class. Or maybe just to spend time with our friends. It could be anything. But we are here. Every day. And that makes a difference in someone's life.

Our school is one of the biggest in the state and has one of the biggest campuses in the nation. We are provided with so many opportunities at our school. It is a privilege. An honor. All of us should be proud to be part of something BIG at Warren Central.

Seven classes a day. That's 342 minutes a day. Here. At school. Hundreds of moments and experiences that we might never forget–that will shape who we will become tomorrow. Each day is something BIG. Each day is everything you make it. It is a part of what you will be. So make it BIG.

Staying up until four in the morning and practicing hip-hop dance moves is what led the group Livin' Legends, which includes Kevin Jackson, Deandre Mays, and Dunhul Weng, to first place in the Star Search competition. Their group displayed a well-rehearsed performance to a mix of popular songs. Kevin said that he and his group were not expecting to win since "everyone else was pretty good."

"I've been dancing since I came out," said senior Kevin Jackson about the longevity of his dancing career. Not only has he competed in numerous dance competitions, including Freestyle Friday at the Indianapolis Convention Center, but he is also a member at a dance studio in Bloomington called Too Much Dance. The studio is not only alive with hip-hop dance, but with jazz, African, and Irish as well.

Sophomore Deandre Mays, who has been dancing for about five years, is also part of the same dance studio as Jackson. "We practice 24/7," said Mays, "but it only takes about an hour to come up with a certain routine." Mays, as well as Jackson, hopes to turn his love of dancing into a future career.

Newcomer senior Dunhul Weng, who has only been dancing for six months, specializes in break dancing within the group. "I do several different dances: the flare, windmill, freeze, six step, and others." Even though he doesn't plan on dance making an appearance in his future, he said he continues with it because he has a passion for it.

Although dancing became the main focus of Star Search this year, the rest of the competition shined in other aspects as well. "It was really good seeing so much competition," says performer Levert Hudson.

WARRIORS - 28 CARMEL - 0

Was homecoming a big game for you?
Dexter Smith: "Yeah, since we played Carmel, and it was my last game as a senior. That game was more of a trademark. There was a lot of hype around it, and the coaches were pushing us to do well."

What do you remember most about that game?
Jamie Arnold: "I remember that the game was shut-out because Carmel didn't score at all, and we stopped them on the one-yard line and held them for four downs."

How did you relax before the game?
DS: "After we ate, I just grabbed a set of headphones and mellowed out before it was time to play."

Were the coaches any different from any other game?
JA: "Yes, they were harder because they knew that if there was anyone with the potential to beat us, it was them."

What was the emotion in the locker room before the game?
DS: "Intense, because we didn't know what would happen so we were just very focused."

Dexter Smith was a key player in this game; how do feel he performed?
JA: "Dexter plays hard every game; he always gives 100 percent, and he leaves everything he has out on the field."

Jamie Arnold was a key player; how do you feel he performed?
DS: "Me and Jamie are the mouths for the defense. We call out the things we see. Jamie is the best middle linebacker in the state!"

Seniors Jamie Arnold and Dexter Smith stand together before tackling the second ranked Carmel Greyhounds. Both made major plays for defense in this game.

CLIMBING THE MOUNTAIN ONE STEP AT A TIME

leading the way

At this year's annual leadership retreats, students were met by guest speaker Ty Sells, who taught Warren's leaders to accept and respect differences and meet goals with everyone on the same page.

"We had arm-wrestling competitions to see which group won the most matches. This taught us all that helping others win helps yourself win," said junior James Hamilton.

There were many other activities that teach qualities that every good leader needs, including a maze grid that students had to cross by listening and trusting their teammates. They also honed their listening skills by playing a game, in which they had to sit, stand, and kneel very quickly when told to do so.

Students also discussed those people they thought were role models and leaders to them and found that each and every person has flaws and problems. These leaders learned that no matter what they do, they will never be perfect examples for those around them, but they can always strive to improve themselves.

When asked why she puts so much effort into putting together the leadership retreats each year, Ms. Wolff responded, "I think there are kids who are in leadership positions that haven't been taught how to lead. They are neat, popular kids who get elected, but do not have the training to be effective."

Brad Ellington enjoys the leadership retreats and believes they are beneficial because it provides "a chance for all leaders to be on a level playing field to learn to effectively lead others."

"I had a blast and hope to attend again next year because I learned things to help me at school and improve in other aspects of my life," said Daniel Loncarevic.

Juniors and seniors hone their listening skills as they listen in order to sit down or stand up as quickly as posssible. They found that leaders are able to listen to many things at once and still make sense of it all in order to make the best decision for the group.

IF YOU DON'T LIKE YOUR FATE, CHANGE IT a timeless love story

Walking through the lobby, trying to fight your way through the sea of people all here to see Warren's annual musical, you think to yourself, "Man! Has the PAC ever been this crowded?" Well, the answer to that question is no, at least not since the 1997 production of "Wizard of OZ." Yes, that's right, 10 years ago.

Thirty minutes before showtime and the cast was gathered in the studio theater, their adrenaline pumping; the excitement was like wildfire. The atmosphere was almost frantic, a group of Nubians could be seen putting last minute touches on their destroyed costumes and immediately to the left a crowd of Egyptian hand maidens primping themselves to perfection.

Back in the PAC, people began pouring in from the lobby. Families and groups of students alike came to see what all the commotion for the last two months was about, and why Mr. Colby wanted so badly for the show to be sold out that he would not shave his beard until all three shows did.

Finally, showtime! The lights dimmed, the music started and everyone settled in for AIDA

"This is the story of a love that flourished in a time of hate!" sang Jessica Murphy who played Amneris, Egyptian princess and suitor to Radames, an Egyptian war hero.

The show centers around Aida, the Nubian princess captured and enslaved by Egyptian soldiers. Aida and Radames fall into a forbidden love, betraying their people and their countries. In the end, the two lovers were buried alive in the same tomb, sentenced to spend eternity together.

Walking down the halls of Warren Central, several months later, the occasional person could still be heard singing "My Strongest Suit," or "The Gods Love Nubia," even referring to Anna-Marie Hosei as Aida. "Once the show was over, I felt a sense of acomplishment knowing that we put smiles on peoples' faces," Hosei said, "and that's what I love to do."

Captain Hook, played by senior Ryan England, steers his ship through Neverland as he prepares to make Wendy walk the plank. Ryan was privileged with all three villainous roles in this year's productions.

The day after opening night of Peter Pan, the halls buzzed with news of how exciting the drama department's version of the play had been. With seniors Becca Euliss as Peter and Jessica Murphy as Wendy fighting the evil Captain Hook, played by Ryan England, there was excitement in the air as opening night approached.

Most of the talk around school was about the choreographed fight scenes among the Indians, Lost Boys, and Pirates. Although this aspect did draw a lot of attention, the most exciting feature of this year's spring play turned out to be flying! "It was like being on a giant swing," announced Becca.

Because both Becca and Jessica were seniors this year and because it was their final major Warren production, they each felt that it was an incredible experience. Jessica felt that it was especially rewarding. "This play was just as exciting as any musical I've ever been a part of," she said.

Although it was their senior year, director John Colby did not just hand out the lead roles. He said that it really came down to the wire when he was casting the Darlings and Peter. Jessica said she "honestly didn't think [she] would get the part because it was the major female role." Each of the girls was so excited to be working with one another because they have overcome so much that it was just suiting to end their theatrical careers at Warren together.

Each of them, along with Stephen Koch, as Michael, and Chandler Kent, as John, got to experience flying. They felt as though going the extra mile enhanced the production in many ways and worked to get the audience more engaged.

That extra mile turned out to be a lot more than many crew members expected. It took a number of cables and pulleys as well as Adam Kashner and a steering wheel to get Becca in the air and keep her there. Capturing the real feelings of magic and childhood enchantment that drew in the audience made all the hard work worthwhile.

"Not flying was never an option," said Jessica when asked why she thought the director and producers decided to go that route. Mr. Colby said, "With Aida, we set the bar that we don't do high school shows, and four kids running around pretending to fly was just too high school for a Warren production."

HOW DID IT FEEL TO BE A PART OF FLYING IN THE SPRING PLAY THIS YEAR?

"It was really fun to fly but sort of scary in the beginning. It was exciting, but it hurt a little, and you can imagine where."

STEPHEN KOCH, 11

A last minute performance stole the show at Lip Sync with an eclectic mix of music and show stopping costume changes. When asked how long it took Get B.A.C.K., which included seniors David Cho, Brad Ellington, Adam Kashner, and Kyle Rawn, to prepare for the show, the members collectively answered, "We decided to perform Monday night, picked the songs Tuesday night, and took the stage Wednesday night!"

As a Student Council officer, Brad Ellington not only performed but also produced the show. He was stunned to find that his name was actually listed as a producer in the program. He laughingly responded, "It was a lot of fun, but a little stressful!"

Get B.A.C.K. was relieved, not to mention surprised, to win, especially Adam–the audience that night could even see him take a deep breath right after hearing they had won. There was a lot of competition, and everyone could see that the Football Players were sure they would win. "We even got a 200 point deduction for going over by a minute and a half," David said.

The third place winner was Victoria Kimmons, who floored the crowd doing a solo performance of "Listen" by Beyonce. "When I first walked out I was nervous," Kimmons said, "but as the song went on I just tied it to the things that were going on in my life and overall it turned out great!"

building memories

After suffering the loss of his father early in the school year, junior Jeremy Pittman had a rough time this year. "I have really begun to see who my true friends are," said Jeremy.

Although he has been through a lot, Jeremy has remained close with his best friend, junior Casey Pollard, through it all. Even when his world was falling apart, Jeremy knew he could go to Casey's house, regardless of who was there, if anyone was at all, lie down and sleep until Casey came home.

Even though the two can go a while without hanging out on the weekends or seeing each other out of school, they share the type of bond that some people only hope for. When something goes wrong, or when something is right, they are there for each other.

Since the beginning of the school year, Jeremy has been working hard to keep everything in line for his senior year. He is on the baseball team and has been putting a lot of effort into hopefully receiving a scholarship to be on a college team. Since Casey is also on the team, the two get to spend extra time with each other.

"We've been friends since the third grade because Casey was running backwards in gym, and he was still ahead of most of the other kids," Jeremy said. They met when they were in first grade, but they didn't really become friends until each of them saw the other and thought they would make good friends. Since then, they have built more memories than others have a chance to build in an entire 20 years of friendship.

Pittman recalls a time when Pollard wanted to throw his famous flying hook shot, but after not making it the first few tries, he began to take off one article of clothing in the cold winter air after each missed shot. "He made it before he was actually naked," Jeremy said, "but it was still pretty funny."

"I love him," Casey says of his best friend, and when looking at the two, it is quite clear that they really are best friends. The two of them are looking forward to their senior year together.

In high school, it is not the things we learn in the classroom that we keep with us. The memories we make with our friends and the time we share working through the tough stuff and doing what we love shape our high school experience.

"We've been friends since the third grade because Casey was running backwards in gym, and he was still ahead of most of the other kids."

With a remaining 15 minutes in his rotation, Kyle Wilson guards the lap pool at Indy Island. This job required a mandatory three-day training session through StarGuard.

Kyle Wilson climbs out of the pool after saving a fellow lifeguard during a vac drill. These drills are performed occasionally in order to make sure the lifeguards are paying attention to the people in the pool.

BIG bucks

graphic by/Danielle Gurnac

A job. One of the most important parts of being a teenager and being in high school. No longer do you have to wait on that weekly allowance of a mere 20 bucks, because with a job you've got your own cash to spend however you like.

When going on the hunt for a job, some teenagers opt for bagging groceries at the local store, handing out ice cream cones at a nearby ice cream shop, or hanging racks of clothes at a huge department store. But for junior Kyle Wilson, his job of choice was to be a lifeguard at Indy Island.

Kyle, who has been working at Indy Island for a year and a half, got the job through his sister, a former supervisor. He gets paid an astonishing $8.35 an hour and works an average of six days a week. A typical day at work for Kyle is walking back and forth on concrete looking at the swimmers and hoping not to see someone drowning or lying at the bottom of the pool.

The pay, the excitement, and working with friends are some of the top reasons why Kyle was drawn to be a lifeguard. Kyle, who works with about five classmates, said that the best part of being a lifeguard is witnessing a lot of weird things and people. "I wanted this job because it paid well and seemed a lot more interesting than working at the typical fast-food joint, asking 'Would you like to supersize that for 20 cents more?'" Kyle said.

"My job is great. The most exciting part is not knowing what is going to happen next."

Kyle Wilson

Although walking around and witnessing people at a pool sounds interesting, Kyle claims that it isn't the job for everyone. "I wouldn't recommend this job to just anyone. It's not the typical sit in a chair and get a tan image that most people think of a lifeguard as. It takes a lot of hard work, alertness, and patience to perform this job well." Kyle also claims that walking on ridged concrete all day isn't the easiest task either.

Kyle remembers some frightening moments while being a lifeguard though. He recalls the scariest moment when he and other co-workers believed that a little girl had broken her neck. Within his year and a half, he has had to rescue about 20 people, most of them children jumping into the deep end. Just those facts alone show the difficulty of performing his job.

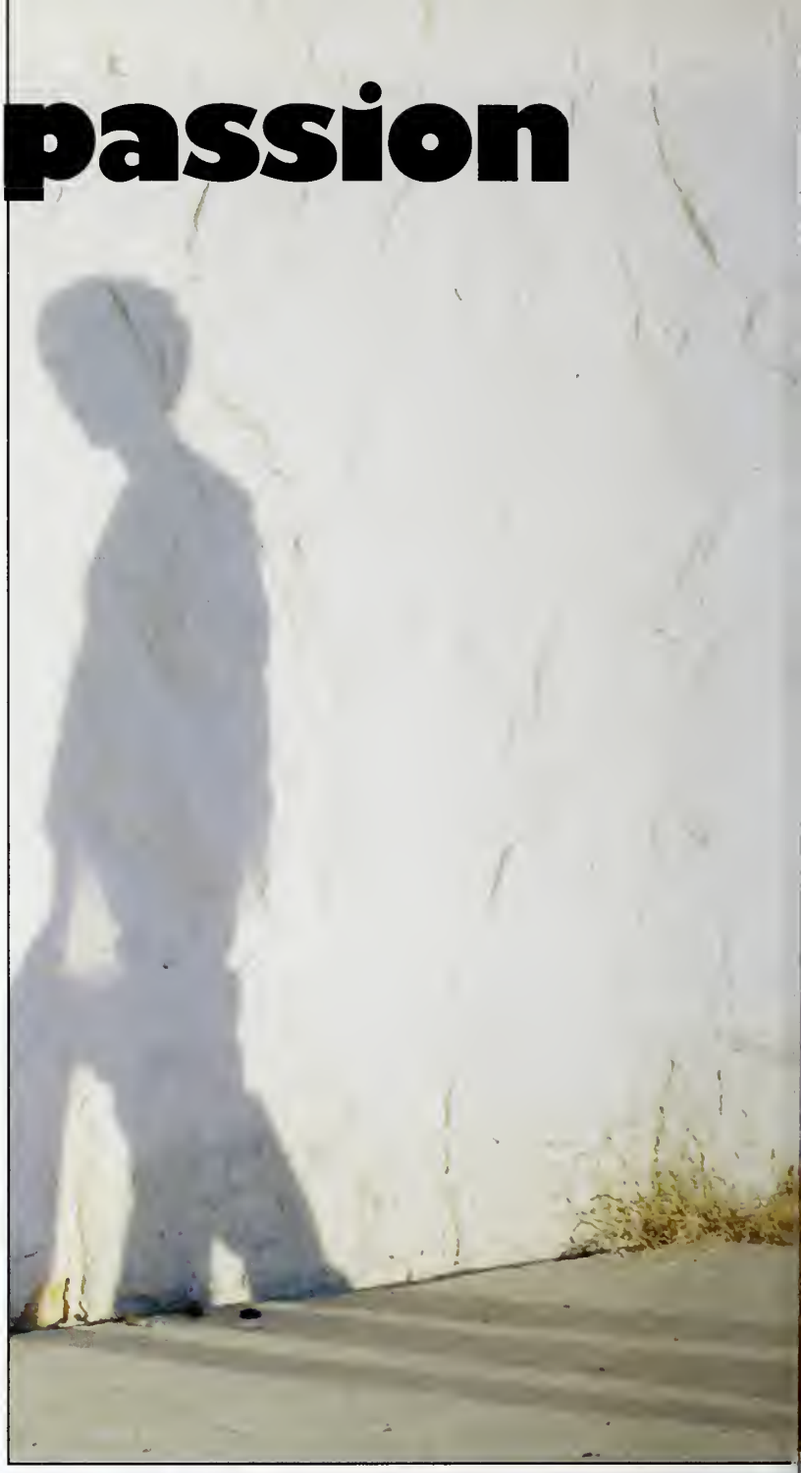
a skating passion

Scars, bruises, and a nearly detached finger may not sound like the typical idea of "fun," but for junior Maxx Mills it is the price to pay to participate in an extreme sport such as skateboarding. Although he has only been skating for two years, he has already landed a job at Ultra Violet Skate Park and has competed in one competition. His friend, senior Tommy Galbert, is to thank for Mills' introduction to skateboarding, as well as his knowledge of basic skills.

"A lot of pain is involved in learning to skateboard," Mills said, "and being able to keep your balance is another huge aspect." His tips for beginners are to practice in the grass and wear a helmet if need be. "Once while skating in Eastgate Mall, my finger got caught between a piece of metal and a wall, and my finger was almost torn off because of it, which is why one should be careful when trying to learn this sport." Mills said that broken fingers from trying to catch oneself is a constant and normal aspect of skateboarding.

Thanks to his passion and practice, Mills, who goes to the skate park every weekend, has established and perfected his "street tricks," which took him a total of about four months to fully understand. Two of his main, most popular tricks include the kick flip, which is a jump off the ground and a kick of the board; the other is a nose slide, which is a jump onto an object and a slide with the front of the board.

Even though Mills knows the possible dangers of his extreme activity, he still continues with it. "Skateboarding acts as a stress reliever for me and as an activity to keep me active. Skateboarding gives me a sense of freedom when I'm out there."



Junior Michael VanSkyock takes a quick break as his rugby team members dive for the ball. VanSkyock joined the Lawrence Claymores team this year where he trains three days a week with at least one game each week as well.

DO YOU HAVE WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A "FASHIONISTA"?

major trends

Flats, big bags, leggings, dresses, polka dots, stripes, skinny jeans, beaded necklaces, bright colors. Only a clueless person wouldn't know that these are some of the year's most displayed fashions. Although a little over-the-top, fashion has been an exciting adventure for those who dare to be different. Now, more than ever, people are not afraid to step out of the box in order to make a fashion statement.

Senior Jaszmin Kuhner was an example of one of the up-to-date fashion-goers. Not only did she follow the trends that were set, but she found a way to add a subtle twist to an outfit. Most of her inspiration came from style tips in "Teen Vouge" as well her own ingenuity. "Eighties fashion is big; my favorite fashion this year is a dress paired with leggings and flats or stilletos."

Accessories. These simple additions have become the items that sometimes make or break an outfit. Whether it's pearls, beaded bracelets, oversized studs, or "paparazzi" sunglasses, accessories make a major statement towards fashion. "Accessories are a must-have; they can make a plain outfit look glamourous," said Kuhner.

Whether it was high heels with a skirt or a pair of baggy jeans, students knew that the best thing about fashion was making it your own.

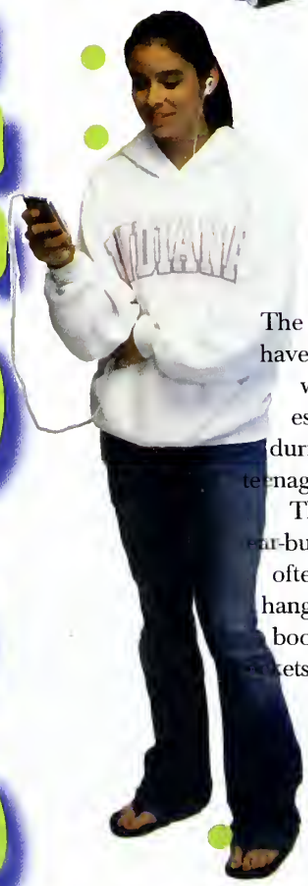
The classic story of the boom-box will often linger in our heads. Never will forget how carrying these 4-pound objects on our shoulders used to be all so cool.

A walkman/cassette player was a fashion essential in the '90s. These pricey items were a great way to listen to the newly-introduced CD's and slowly fading away cassette tapes.

"Spice Up Your Life" was the popular music theme in 1997 when five girls emerged for London to form the popular girl group the Spice Girls. Their CD's sold record amounts and could be found in most girls walk mans.



The must have iPod was an essential during our teenage years. The white ear-buds could often spotted hanging out of bookbags and pockets during the school day.

The iPhone was the newest must have. This powerful cellular device combined a mobile phone, wide screen iPod and breakthrough internet communication tools into one small light handheld.

This year, the new iPhone by Apple was released. It was $599.99 when it first came out! It seems like things are becoming smaller and more compact everyday to fulfill the growing desire for technology.

By our standards, teens a decade ago were stuck in the stone age. The average high school student did not even have access to a computer, and it was unheard of to need the internet for a homework assignment. No one had begun to consider DVD players a necessity, and cars had more cassette players than CD players.

Today, it is difficult to even buy cassettes. The portable CD player was still a big-ticket item, and now teens have music in the palms of their hands. When the iPod made its debut, it held 10 GB and had a mechanical scroll wheel. Since then, we have had 10 more models, each with more capabilities including video and hundreds of accessories to match.

Technology has become a staple of everyday life for teens. Without computers, cell phones, and blackberries many lives could be complete chaos. Beyond that, many simply believe they cannot live without their technological toys.

I CAN'T MAKE IT A DAY WITHOUT...

"I definitely could not go a day without my cell phone. I would be lost because that's how I keep in touch with my friends."
-Amber De La Cruz

"I would die going a whole day without my computer. Once when I was grounded, I snuck and popped up the lock on my computer room, just so I could get on for a few minutes."

a Golden tradition

Rah rah for Warren, Warren will win. Fight til the finish, never give in. You do your best, and we'll do the rest. So fight on, til victory....rah rah rah", was the saying shouted by thousands of Warren fans after every touchdown scored during the football season.

This was just one of the many ways that Warren showed their black and gold spirit.

During the year, Warren introduced the saying "In the soul of every person lies a Warrior." But looking further into this saying, you come to find that in every Warrior lies a combination of courage, strength, heart and most of all, spirit.

Spirit. What does it mean really? The American Heritage Dictionary defines spirit as the vital principle or animating force within living beings, but for Warren, it's so much more.

For decades, Warrior pride has been spotted in the fall during football games, in the community making a huge difference, but most of all in the halls of Warren everyday.

Whether it is wearing a black and gold T-shirt for spirit day on Friday, talking about Aida, anticipating Friday's "Dub-C remix", or even dressing up for one of the wacky spirit days, every student showed his or her own Warrior spirit in his or her own individual way.

Everyone's individual spirit creates the heart, which creates strength, which creates courage, which creates the soul. And in that soul lies a Warrior. A Warrior that prides him or herself on spirit.

The story behind the hero

Every year, over a thousand people gather to help support Riley Hospital by participating in the annual Will Power Walk/Run. In this event, participants are able to win cash prizes by running in a 10k or 5k race, bid on silent auction items, enjoy refreshments, or just spend time with family and friends. (above)

The Will Power event also celebrates the lives of former Riley Kids by bringing them together to participate in a victory lap around the top floor of the gym where they are awarded a Will Power medal upon completion. This event is also a great oppurtunity for people in broadcasting and the newspaper to cover such a powerful cause first hand, as senior Stephen Harris shows by interviewing junior Micah Aldrich after completing the race. (left)

Imagine waking up one morning and having your whole life turned upside-down. Your daily routine suddenly coming to an abrupt standstill and the feeling of fear and panic starting to suddenly set in.

This was the case for Mr. Rich and Melanie Shepler when their three-year-old son, Will Shepler, was diagnosed with acute lymphnoblastic leukemia in 2002. "I was floored," Mr. Shepler said. "I wasn't really living in 24/7. I didn't see Will slowly digressing. I was in the biggest fog of my life."

With hemoglobin levels at 2.3 (the normal being 12-15), Will Shepler was battling for his life.

"As a mom, I knew something was wrong," she said. "I had known that something wasn't right. His color had changed as if he were anemic."

After Will's nurses had instructed the Sheplers to head to Riley Hospital immediately, they would soon discover that Will's signs of sleeping too much and not walking would lead to one of the biggest battles of his life.

On November 1, 2002, Will began treatment for leukemia. "A lot of friends and family were shocked, but I actually felt a lot of relief. I had known for a few months that something wasn't right, and someone was finally acknowledging that something was really wrong," Ms. Shepler said. "I knew that we were in the right place and that we were going to be taken care of."

Small miracle after small miracle, Will proved to be a fighter. His age gave him more resilience and he also responded to the treatment very rapidly; both gave him a stronger chance of being cured. If no cancer returned within five years, Will would had been considered completely cured.

Unfortunately, this was not the case as Will's cancer returned just 6 months after completing 3 years of chemotherapy.

> "For the most part, Will is doing well. The amount and type of chemotherapy has really taken its toll physically, but mentally he keeps bouncing back, time after time. He's my hero."
> -Will's father Rich Shepler

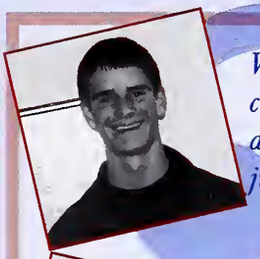
Will Shepler was once again in a battle for his life.

"For the most part, Will is doing very well. The amount and type of chemotherapy has really taken its toll physically, but mentally he keeps bouncing back, time after time. He's my hero," Mr. Shepler said.

For thousands of more people, Will has proven to be their hero too. His story has inspired many, and his will to fight has shown several others what courage really is.

The thousands of participants sporting their Will Power shirts over the past five years is just one small way to prove it. Will can be spotted at the Will Power events sporting his blue T-shirt with "Will" on the back.

Adding the name on the back of Will's shirt to the power of Will's life altering story, you form one strong bond, Will Power.

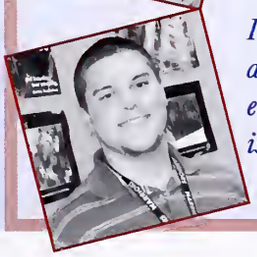


Will Power is not only a great thing in general but benefits a great cause as well. Recently, my brother was treated at Riley Hospital, and knowing that I participated in something that benefits Riley is just an amazing feeling.

-doug ellington

Will Power is a wonderful organization that does so much to help support a rising cause. The benefits of the organization are just really close to my heart as well as several others.

-menan assefa



I have strong ties to the Shepler family and a deeply-rooted interest and devotion to helping the cause. Bringing awareness to the general public about leukemia and all the good the Riley House does is one of the main reason for all my dedication to Will Power.

VIOLENCE

Living with the effects of violence on our generation

Our great grandparents witnessed WWI, their children witnessed WWII, our parents witnessed Vietnam, and we have witness wars in Iraq and a war of terrorism. The question that lingers in most of our heads is what will our children and their children witness?

Some say that a world without tight security used to exist. That terrorist plots and bomb scares used to never occur. Some say there was a time when police officers were not in the halls, the doors were not locked during the day and we could go to football game without passing through a metal detector.

In our generation, security has changed to include passport checks when trying to leave the country, luggage checks by bomb-sniffing dogs, cops carrying guns around school, bus/car checks with the use of metal detectors, military containing semi-automatics surrounding the borders, colored charts of possible terrorist plots, and even something as simple as a security tag on the clothing we purchase.

These types of security measures have become a part of our every day life. We say high to the cops around school, we take our shoes off and empty our pockets while going through security at an airport, and we freeze at the door when a security tag sets the alarm off while exiting a department store.

All these different security measures are implemented in hopes of preventing another tragic outcome such as September 11, Columbine, or the Virginia Tech massacre. Just imagine what might had been if Homeland Security had been around in the past. The thoughts of possibly never witnessing the terrorist acts of September 11 or the Oklahoma City Bombing could bring a tear to almost anyone's eye.

The fact that a few seconds of a passport check or luggage search possibly changing the outcome of thousands of people's lives is something amazing. The world we live in is becoming extremely secure, and living in the future is only going to be that much more safer.

On April 16, 2007 Virginia Tech Student, Seung-Hui Cho, killed 27 classmates and 5 faculty members before killing himself. During the spree, Seung-Hui Cho sent a package containing pictures, videos and letters to CNN where it was later released to the media. The tragedy is considered the deadliest shooting in modern day history by one individual.

On September 11, 2001 two hijacked commercial flights struck the World Trade Center, located in New York City, causing both towers to collapse. Soon after, another hijacked aircraft struck the Pentagon while a fourth hijacked aircraft crashed into a field in Pennsylvania. Over 3,000 people were killed during these attacks lead by Osama Bin Laden.

On April 19, 1995 at 9:02 a.m. an explosion ripped through the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City killing 168 people, 19 being children. Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols were charged with the terrorist attack. McVeigh was executed by lethal injection at the Federal Penitentiary at Terre Haute, Indiana, on June 11, 2001.

On April 20, 1995 in Littleton, Colorado two high-school seniors, Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris, enacted an all-out assault on Columbine High School during the middle of the school day. With guns, knives, and a multitude of bombs, the two boys walked the hallways randomly shooting at students and staff. When the day was done, 12 students, one teacher, and the two murderers were dead.

On October 3, 2006 Charles Carl Roberts IV entered a Amish one-room school house in Pennsylvania with a variety of weapons. After binding ten girls, ranging from the ages of 6-15 with plastic flex ties he prepared to shoot them execution style. He shot 10 girls, three died immediately and two more died in the hospital by morning. He then shot himself as police tried to enter the school room.

In October of 2002 the nation experienced 23 days of fear as two unknown individuals created chaos with a sniper shooting spree around the Washington DC area. 10 individuals were killed and three others wounded before John Allen Muhammad and Lee Boyd Malvo were arrested, at a highway rest area, for these acts. Muhammad was sentenced to the death penalty and Malvo was sentenced to life without parole.

Remember your eighth grade year? Everyone knew your name and you had a million friends. Imagine you are back in that place. You come home from basketball practice and your parents tell you to take a seat. Now, from experience, you know that when they ask you to do that it's never good news. You sit down, a few awkward seconds pass and they finally say it; however, the only part of the conversation you heard was, "we're moving." Just think of how devastated you were to have to move to the other side of town. This happens every single day to children across the globe, but for some, that "we're moving" talk does not just mean across town but to a totally different country.

In November 2002, 12-year-old Libjeer Monroy moved to the United States from Venezuela, but unlike most children, Monroy was excited at the prospect of a new life. "I was sad to be leaving my brothers and sister," Monroy said, "but I was excited because it was a new beginning."

Reasons that families come to America range from the search for a better job, the need to escape an oppressive government and in Monroy's case, a hostile enviornment. "By the time I was 12, there was a lot of violence in my home country," Monroy says. "My life was actually threatened because I refused to join a gang."

If you simply scan the halls of Warren Central you will see countless different cultures and countries represented. In the G hallway alone, students from Mexico, Germany, Serbia, China, and other nations gather in front of their lockers preparing for the next class. All the obstacals these students must endure, are compounded by being pushed into the American way of life and still wanting to hold on to their cultures, but they manage to adapt to American culture while at the same time not compromising their individuality.

Strumming along on his guitar, junior Sean Flynn-gan performs with the band during a concert. The additions of instruments such as the drums and guitar give the band a more individual and different appeal.

The powerful voice of senior Jessica Murphy became familiar to thousands of students during the school year. Jessica starred as Amneris in the musical Aida, Wendy in the play Peter Pan and held many of the solos in the Connection Show Choir.

Helping Brookview students, senior Christian Ostermeier helps with the pick a duck game during the Brookview Fall Festival. Both NHS and Student Council members participated in these types of activities to earn service points.

Forming a distribution line, Student Council members work hard to deliver bags of food to needy Warren Township families during the annual Huddle Up Against Hunger food drive. Up to 30 bags of food were given to each individual family during the Thanksgiving season.

DIFFERENT ACTIVITIES CREATE A BIG DIFFERENCE IN STUDENTS' LIVES EVERYDAY active in activities

Everyday life for students has been drastically changed by the various activities offered by Warren Central and the Walker Career Center.

Whether it be the various choirs, the culinary program, speech team or student council, all these activities are jam-packed with events, practices or meetings during the school year to help make a difference in and out of our community. And more than likely, you haven't even heard about a lot of them.

For example, the culinary program captured its third consecutive state title for gourmet cooking. The winter guard performed to its third straight consecutive state title and received a silver medal at worlds. The speech team spoke and popped their way to second at state, and the robotics team engineered their way to a first place state medal as well.

Many of these activities could possibly be considered sports due to the dedication and commitment needed by members. And if doubtful, take the Gold Brigade marching band for an example. The Gold Brigade begins their practices while most are laying on the beach or hanging out at the local movie theatre. And if still slightly confused by what we mean, we are talking about summer break.

The Gold Brigade marching band, at one point over the summer, will wake up at 9 a.m. to begin marching drills and perfecting music. These early morning practices are used to master skills for future competitions and football games. They finish sculpting these skills around 9 p.m. that same day.

This is just a small example of the various things a lot of these groups require to maintain perfection. Student Council members and officers venture into school around July for the three day Going for the Gold event which aids incoming freshman by familiarizing them with the campus.

National Honor Society members will continue to work in the community and in the school over the summer even though meetings will not start until school resumes.

All in all, the activities around this "little town of ours" are amazing. They all contribute something great to something so big. Whether five members or 300 all these activities help contribute something which makes them a part of something big.

"In this little town our ours, nothing succeeds like success."

Student Council

Personally, student council has been a huge part of my two years spent here at Warren so far. I joined student council as a freshman and have become increasingly involved. In October 2005, I received the honor of Member of the Month, which is a monthly award given to members based upon number of service hours, behavior, and attitude. Then at the end of the year, an even bigger award, Member of the Year, is given out. Four students, one from each grade level, are recognized for the hard work and dedication. At the end of my freshman year I was truly ecstatic upon receiving this honor. This year I am co-webmaster of the new student council website, have been awarded with October Member of the Month again, and I plan on running for office next year.

Leaders who earn respect

Imagine sitting in a 10,000 square foot room with 279 other members shouting "Kudos, Kudos!"

Echoes of routine spirit chants ring through the stone pillars and out into the "G" corridor every other Thursday, as Student Council members file into the PAC to find a seat near friends.

Once the meeting has been called to order, President Megan Mattingly leads everyone in the Pledge of Allegiance. Based on amount of points earned, and involvement in student council, T-shirts and candy are given to a member of the month in each grade level.

Whether it's huddling up against hunger, fundraising, or selling dance tickets, Student Council does it big.

"I think the best thing about Student Council this year has been all the success," President Megan Mattingly said, "We sold a record amount of dance tickets, as well as tickets to star search and other events."

Huddle Up Against Hunger is a huge event that Student Council sponsors every year. As the annual canned-food drive intensified, cream-filled pastries and a big, shiny trophy was at risk. But donuts and a trophy were not the only rewards at risk. Almost 40,000 cans collected by students and faculty forced Mr. Burchett into a challenge he couldn't pass up. He promised the Warrior Nation a night on the ice as goalie if enough cans were collected. Warriors packed the Pepsi Coliseum to watch Mr. Burchett's lack of hockey skills as he tried to defend the goal during half time at an Indiana Ice Game.

Student Council is not only the biggest in the state, but the nation as well. Thanks to the new Warrior Nation Club, athletic teams have gained support, which pushed them to excel. Students attended as many games, matches and tournaments as possible in order to earn points for each event. The member with the most points received a prize such as an iPod.

The additions to Student Council didn't stop there though. Ms. Amy McClure was welcomed to Warren Central as a Spanish teacher at the beginning of the year and jumped at the chance to be a part of the biggest Student Council in the nation.

"I love the opportunity to work with, inspire, guide, and encourage students with leadership qualities. It's an excellent organization full of great kids!" Ms. McClure said.

Leading a large group can at times be a difficult task. When I was elected President of NHS, I was ecstatic. I had all of these new plans to make NHS more fun and member-friendly. However, I soon realized these plans, although possible, were not going to take effect mainly because they weren't approved or executed properly. Despite these problems, I learned from fellow officers how to work better as a group. Usually, I work alone when given the opportunity to work with a group, but thanks to the officers and sponsors, I learned not to do everything by myself but instead to delegate tasks and make sure everyone is involved. More importantly, what plans didn't make it off the ground and what new skills I learned, were the people I met. As an officer, I filed point forms and tallied attendance sheets and became familiar with every member. I wanted to put a face to each name in an attempt to get to know everyone. By the end of the year, I had met half of the 300+ people in NHS. Every one of the people were some of the most kind and giving people I had ever met. It made me glad to know that each member was out there in the school or community giving back with a smile on their face.

Nerds Have Skills

Scholarship, leadership, service and character; the organization that expects more from its members

From the moment a student receives and accepts an invitation from NHS, that student is expected to show those characteristics.

National Honor Society is more than just an honor roll organization; it's an organization for students who demonstrate scholarship, leadership, service and character.

An inductee is invited to the candle light induction ceremony, where families praise the soon-to-be members as they cross the stage.

Each inductee is given a candle to hold high. When all candles are lit on the stage, the lights go out for a moment in order to see the brilliance of what Warren Central can offer.

When the lights return, the inductees are called upon individually from senior to sophomore to step off the stage and receive their official National Honor Society certificates.

To be a member of NHS, students are expected to maintain a 9.0 GPA or higher and dedicate 20 hours to his or her community and school; including 10 hours to the community, eight hours to school and two hours to tutoring students.

Also, students were expected to attend at least two meetings per semester. Meetings were held before school at 7a.m. in the PAC.

Although NHS expected a lot from its members, it was because of what its purpose was.

"National Honor Society is purposed for establishing students to make a voluntary outreach to the community," vice president of NHS Cornelius Audu stated.

There were a few changes that were brought to National Honor Society, including 50 inductees joining the organization. Also, the coffee fundraiser substituted for the usual pizza fundraiser this year and allowed NHS to raise over $1,000 for the scholarship fund for the seniors.

"I believe that the purpose of NHS is to help leaders of the school give back to their community. The greatest benefit of being a part of NHS is being able to help the community and my school. I helped set up the Christmas dance, volunteered at track meets during the summer, and more," NHS member D'Juan Richardson said.

NHS might have its high expectations of dedication but at the end of the day their T-shirt saying "Nerds have Skills" explains it all.

Speech Team

allison gardner

I remember the first time I walked into the speech room my freshman year. I did not know a single person, and I was pretty much scared to death. I decided to audition with an improptu speech. That was probably one of the best decisions I made in high school. At first, I was basically friendless on the team. However, something about the way the upperclassman were so close and passionate about the team was really cool to me. I began to become better friends with my teammates and before long I had become a full blown speechie. Three years later, I attribute a lot of who I am to the realationships I made and lessons I learned from being on the speech team. So far we have gone from runner-up to state champions and back to runner-up. In my eyes, every year we have gotten better, even if our placing in the state does not reflect that. I think speech is much more than waking up at 4 in the morning and driving for several hours to compete. I have one more year left on speech team. I have no clue what it will be like or what crazy drama we will have or what relationship will be formed, but I know it is gonna be good; that's for sure.

Chillie Kai, Never Say Die

I know I can, be what I want to be, if I work hard at it, I'll get the one and not the three.

A group of 50 some students dressed in black suits are chanting and forming a mosh pit of sorts, all at 6:45 in the morning, but that's speech team.

After coming off a state-winning year a lot had been anticipated for the seasons outcome and road to "competitive greatness."

It is guaranteed that on any given school day a speech team member will be in the speech headquarters working on his or her piece. The most unique aspect of them is that it consists of rookies, veterans, all grade levels, athletes, performers and artists. The speech team is a very unexpected and special blend of of people.

The competitive season kicked off at the Culver invitational. The team took home third place. Throughout the next few meets the team dominated the competition and took home the first place trophies with ease.

The traditional Munster overnight was the closest thing to what state was going to be; the team placed 5th. This proved to be a motivational tool for the team as they continued their previous success by winning sectionals and moving on to state

On March 24, the entire speech team along with coaches, parents, and spectators traveled to Southport to compete for the state title. The team took home second place along with five individual state champions. Each and every member contributed to the improvements from last year's team and with each year the team continues to be stronger.

Being part of a state-winning speech team is not just about public speaking or performance, it's about dedication, hard work, persistence, growth and most importantly, passion.

"We do not just compete, we love each other. We are not just good at what we do, we love it. I could not imagine having spent my high school years with a lovelier, more wonderful group of people," said senior Danielle Treece.

At the end of the year, speech is about the bonds you form with others and most importantly, yourself.

Orchestra is without a doubt the best thing that has happened to me. I am so glad that I was introduced to orchestra early in my life. I am especially glad that I am a part of the WCSO (Warren Central Symphony Orchestra). Symphony Orchestra has given me so much because I have seen this orchestra grow so much since I have been in it. I am sure that all of that growth is due to the fact that orchestra has a great director, Mr. Emmert, who has been here for a total of two years. That is one of the many reasons why I love going to class everyday and playing very difficult music. We play music that professional orchestras play. We can actually play the music, not just notes on a paper. We also learn all of the classics like Mendelhossn, Boch and Bevlioz. Orchestra is so different from any other activity in school. It is so different because of the superb level we play at and the way we play. Another reason I love orchestra is because it is an awesome stress reliever.

A string of success

For orchestra students, success comes with hard work and dedication, but the pay off at the end is worth it.

Orchestra is quite possibly one of the greatest examples of a team activity there is. One bass, a single bassoon or violin (even the principle violin) can't make an orchestra great. This is why when Warren Central's Orchestra achieves success, it is a true testament to each hardworking member, and of course, the director, Mr. Grady Emmert.

The rigorous orchestra season really starts at the annual holiday concert, where this year the Symphony Orchestra tackled Tchaikovsky's Christmas classic, "The Nutcracker." This music did more than just please the audience in attendance; it attracted a group of Mr. Emmert's friends from Venice, Italy, to visit Warren for a small performance during class.

With the recordings from the holiday concert, a pops concert from September, and a contest show from a year ago, Warren Central earned itself a trip to Italy for a tour sometime in the next two years. This puts the orchestra in another league, no longer being only known statewide, but possibly internationally known.

Though the orchestra boasts an impressive résumé as a whole, so do individual students. Two members of the orchestra, sophomore bassist Zac Camhi, and sophomore violist Corin Chellberg, both qualified to participate in the Indianapolis Symphonic Orchestra's Side-By-Side Concert. During this unique experience, the two played along side professional musicians in a formal performance.

This was Corin Chellberg's first time participating in the event and he admitted, "It was very stressful, but in the end, it was awesome." The concert took place on March 7, 2007, and the rest of the orchestra was in attendance for support.

"It was a major success," said Director Mr. Emmert. There was plenty for him to be proud of, and if the orchestra continues its success, the sky is the limit.

Singing is a big part of my life. I have been in choir since elementary school so continuing on in high school was essential. This led to my being in three choirs. I am in Connection, Chamber Singers, and Central Jazz. I did my first show, "Will Rogers Follies," here at Warren when I was seven. My great-great grandfather used to own a theatre on Broadway, so I have always wanted to follow the tradition and pursue a career in entertainment. Connection is one of the two choirs I am in that competes. I danced for ten years when I was younger so I like the aspect of combining my dance experience with choir. Chamber Singers focuses on just singing which helps show off vocal ability. Central Jazz, the third choir I am in, involves old standards like "When I Fall In Love," but also more modern Jazz like John Legend's "Ordinary People." Overall I just love choir. It has such a positive atmosphere. I have met so many great people, and it's nice because we have a lot in common. After a while, choir becomes a home away from home for many. Choir is also something that helps take my mind off of problems. All in all, I just love being able to express myself through music.

Hitting a high note in tune

Complicated vocals, challenging dance moves and quick costume changes are what show choirs put into their routines each time they perform.

Connection was the top mixed show choir that combined complicated multiple-part music with a variety of dance genres including hip-hop, classical and the original "show choir" choreography.

Hi-lites was the top all-girls-show-choir who excelled in all ranges of vocal, music and choreography. Chamber Singers was the top mixed concert choir that did not dance but perfected their varied repertoire of music including madrigals, vocal jazz and spirituals; just enough to hold the audiences likings.

The top three choirs, Connection, Hi-lites and Chamber Singers, spent months working on their shows to compete in the spring at various schools around the Midwest. The season kicked off at Danville High School in Danville, Illinois.

Connection placed first runner up, Hi-lites took home third runner up. Chamber Singers placed as Grand Champions for the second year in a row. Senior Jessica Murphy won the outstanding female vocalist award out of all competing schools.

Choir not only improves talents and sharpens singing skills, but also a way to escape into the wonderful world of music.

"Choir brings a perfect balance of fun, talent, hard-work, success, and failure," said sophomore Michael Murphy (Connection)."But it is a learning process that in the end, regardless of placement at competition, we are all winners," he said.

In order to do well at competition time, effort and dedication are all needed to be combined by students as well as the directors. "The students in these top three choirs have to balance their time, energy and social lives in a very difficult manner to be able to perform at this level," choir director Dustin Podgorski said.

Beginning in the summer these top choirs worked hard throughout the year to not only do well at competitions, but to have fun and learn challenging music and choreography. The three groups traveled to five competitions including Danville, Ben Davis, Center Grove, Lawrence Central and Pike High School singing their hearts out each time.

On March 17 select choirs competed at Butler University at state. The excitement of performing and displaying all the hard work and talent put into choir turned out to be most rewarding.

It all started back in fifth grade. I was about to enter middle school and decided to be in band for two main reasons; I absolutely love music and the instruments caught my eye because they were shiny. As high school approached, I had to make the decision whether to stick with band or drop it. I wanted to be in band, but at the same time I was devoted to Cross Country and did not want to give that up. My parents decided to sign me up for band anyways. I wasn't thrilled at the thought of having to drop Cross Country to be in band, but with time band grew on me. Today, I am in Marching Band for the simple reason that I love music and catch myself getting lost in it almost everyday. I never would have guessed that band would have such an impact on me. This year I have had an awesome chance as I became a drum major in the Marching Band. I also play the Alto Sax in Honors Band. I have had to make a few compromises, but in the end it has been worth it as band has brought many new experiences to me. I love music and this has been a great opportunity.

Putting on a show

Nothing succeeds like success for band as they continue with more state titles and great performances.

Brutal hours of practice and difficult pieces to perfect kept the eight different bands reaching farther for success.

Whether it was the pep band getting students hyped up for the big game, the marching band performing during halftime, or drumline competing for a second state title, band thrived on being the best it could be.

"Maintaining a track record of success has been the best thing about this year," band advisor David Brooks said. Marching Band was honored to play at the RCA dome during the Colts versus the Tennessee Titans game in October. Members performed on the field in front of a sold-out crowd of about 56,000.

For the October 8 game, Marching Band and Symphony Orchestra joined together with Color Guard to perform "Rise Up." Marching Band also managed to make a spot for themselves on Channel 13 News as they won the "Band of the Week" award for their halftime performances at the football games.

Honors Band also earned special privileges and was invited to play at the Indiana State Museum during Black History Month. They placed fourth at the ISSMA competition. Junior clarinet player Diana Turner performed with the Honors Band of America at the Bands of America National Concert Band Festival. She was one of two students in Indiana who had such an opportunity.

"You have to live, sleep, and think percussion all day, everyday if you expect to compete on the standards of the Indiana Percussion Association."

Time management can be hard for band members as some have to juggle practice with sports, jobs, homework and other activities. Practices were stressful, but in the end it equalled success.

Winter Guard

Winter guard is considered the sport of the arts. It is a very athletic activity, and we work very hard at everything we do. We practice every day of the week from two until five-thirty p.m. On Saturdays, we practice from nine a.m. to four p.m. It is just a huge accomplishment for me to be a part of a group who has done so much this year. We went through the entire season being undefeated, we have won four state championships consecutively, three times at tri-state, been given the title Open Class champs, and we wrapped up the year with a silver medal at the World Winter Guard Competition in Dayton, Ohio. It is just really unbelievable to accomplish all of these things, and the fact that we accomplished them all in one year is just pretty remarkable. Although winter guard is one of my first priorities, I somehow find extra time to play the violin in Warren Central Symphony Orchestra, tumble at Gymnastics Unlimited, and spend recreational time with my family and friends.

Seeking perfection

Winter guard ends season with a silver medal from Worlds and a fourth consecutive state title.

Twenty-three girls swinging rifles, four state titles and a score of 96.9 earned winter guard a silver medal at the World Competition in Dayton, Ohio.

It's one thing to compete against the best schools in Indiana and come out with a fourth state title, but guard went above and beyond when they performed against the top-ranked winter guards from around the world. Schools from all over the country as well as four different continents attended the annual WGI Competition on April 4.

Although this was the fourth consecutive year that winter guard has competed at the World Competition, this was the first time Warren has ever medaled.

"It was just a great feeling to earn a fourth state title plus a medal on top of that," said sophomore Ashley Carr. "It was an awesome season, and it makes me feel very proud to be a part of a group like this."

Henna tattoos, crimson costumes, and brightly colored flags made up this year's performance "So You See." The concept of the show, which came from Composer Joshua Talboot, was based around a two against three beat.

The whole show was unique and different and everything tied in with two challenging three. Talboot has also worked with famous Broadway shows.

The beginning started out as a big rifle scene, all twenty-three girls had rifles and were swinging and twirling them. Throughout the rest of the show, only five rifles and five savors were included.

The fast-moving show consisted of many crazy and unique moves as well as unusual body positions symbolizing two against three. The flags were very bright colors. Special-techno-line-flags were a lime green color and all of the other flags were yellow.

It was a lot of work for the girls as they had to take time to practice at least five days out of the week. They also had to take all day on Saturdays to perfect their routine. Hard work seemed to lead to the perfection they were seeking as they became silver medalists, won tri-state for the third year in a row, and came out with yet another state title.

Just Say No

kasey ferbrache

It really means a lot to be part of a club that can really impact and change someone's life. Joining Just Say No is probably one of the smartest decisions I've made. Coming into high school, you hear about all the wild parties; it is nice to know there is somewhere for kids who are against drinking and drugs to go. It means a lot to know that I'm not the only one who doesn't think drinking and doing drugs is fun and cool. Just Say No had an impact on my life. It has really given me the knowledge and confidence to make choices for myself and not worry what other people will think. I once had a friend who started to do drugs and drink when she got into high school. I didn't think it was right to just ditch her because of what she did, but then realized what kind of a person she was when she did those things. Seeing how her life and grades went down made me even more against drugs and alcohol. I want to surround myself with positive energy and with people that make good choices. The Just Say No club is very active and is constantly doing different campaigns. Just Say No has influenced me in so many ways. I couldn't be more thankful to be part of such a successful program.

Set sail in a sea of Red

Every 15 minutes someone dies from an alcohol-related car crash in the United States.

Alcohol is the leading cause of death for people between the ages of 16 and 23. Fortunately, there are clubs such as Just Say No that are fighting against these statistics.

Just Say No shared other drug related facts with our school in creative ways that got students attention. Through various WCTV features, Just Say No campaigns informed students to refuse drugs and alcohol and stay involved in a positive lifestyle.

"I don't think the majority of teenagers comprehend the importance of being drug and alcohol free; after all, it is illegal," Just Say No coordinator Mr. Greenlee stated.

Students wearing vibrant red T-shirts flooded the hallways displaying the message "Saving Lives One Day at a Time." With over 170 members wearing these T-shirts, other students were bound to get involved.

All members pledge to meet requirements and commit themselves to denying drug and alcohol use.

More visual promotions were made throughout the year. Suckers were passed out during orange ribbon week before prom to remind students to make good decisions. Various posters were hung around the hallways and new T-shirts were created throughout the year.

Just Say No also helps with many school functions such as the Willpower Walk, Prom Awareness, the Great American Smokeout and other activities that remind students to stay away from drugs and alcohol.

This club is a great way to stay involved with school and keep members lives on task.

"Just Say No is a great way for me to help others and at the same time help myself by keeping away from drugs and alcohol," said Sophomore Elizabeth Heinhuis.

In the past year, there has been a seven percent decline in the United States of drug use. Contributing factors include clubs such as Just Say No. The decrease in negative behavior and increase in lives lived shows that it is always a great day to be a warrior, especially drug and alcohol free.

Esquire & Peacemakers

traneisha english

It feels great to be a part of a group that tries to make such a positive change in the community. This year, I held a leadership position in Peacemakers and was honored to have it. Just the idea of making a change in someone's life, usually an elementary student, just makes me feel incredible.

As a leader, I expected a lot out of everyone this year, due to the fact that Peacemakers isn't just a organization that you can play around and have a good time in. Peacemakers is actually an extremely serious organization that can alter the lives of hundreds maybe even thousands of people if carried out correctly.

Although we got off to a slow start, I think we progressed well and have a lot to look forward to next year. The group contained a lot of people ready to make a positive difference, and I am hoping everyone will return next year.

Increase the peace

Trying to decrease violence, Peacemakers and Esquire make a difference.

Hello, my name is William and I will be your conflict resolution officer today. Let's begin by going over a few standard rules and setting some boundaries set for today's session.

Anything mentioned, excluding drugs, alcohol and abuse will follow the code of confidentiality. Let's begin by stating your names and explaining what the problem is.

This was the standard way to begin a conflict management session between two feuding students in the Peacemakers program.

With violence on the rise in many neighboring townships, as well as the nation, measures are being taken by students to help influence younger generations with conflict resolution tactics.

Eight years ago, Warren established a program called "Peacemakers" dedicated to influencing students in elementary and middle schools about conflict resolution.

This is the first year this program is taking action by actually stepping out into the community.

Members travel to township schools throughout the year and perform skits similar to possible violence related topics experienced during the school year such as bullying or harassment.

These skits include ways to handle the problem or possible choices that can be made without using violence as a means to solve the conflict.

The main goal of the Peacemakers program is to become a positive role model for younger generations to look up to.

"The only way to make changes in the community with violence related topics is to target and utilize the youth," junior Traneisha English said.

Members also receive grants to use for community service projects and other school related activities such as conferences and school visitations.

Also lending a helping hand with violence related issues is the organization Esquire. Meeting every Tuesday after school, this organization focuses more on violence in the community.

STUDENTS GIVE SMALL DONATIONS TO HELP A HORRIBLE AFRICAN EPIDEMIC

how to save a life

It is always important to participate in service to both the school and the community, but Spanish teacher Ms. Amy McClure took it in her hands to try and help the world.

During a church service, Ms. McClure was introduced to the "Nothing But Nets" campaign. Due to the widespread epidemic of malaria in sub-Saharan Africa, what Americans view as just a few mosquitoes on a summer night, can be ministers of death to some African people. Simple bug nets that cost a mere $10 keep children safe at night.

The Nothing But Nets program is a product of the United Nations Foundation, and with corporate sponsors like the NBA, MLS, Sports Illustrated, and the United Methodist Church, it's growing rapidly throughout the nation. Ms. McClure's campaign was a charity fund that was purely voluntary and that any students or faculty could contribute to.

Without conventionally advertising the event on Warren Live or posters in the hallway, participation was slow at first. This did change however, when an anonymous donor gave $100 to the fund about a week into its run.

"The amazing thing is that the students didn't necessarily plan on giving money. I had plenty of students stop by and empty out loose change from their pockets, and it helped so much," Ms. McClure said about the positive response. Even small sums added up over time, because after a period of three weeks, an additional $500 was raised to purchase nets. Warren students helped save the lives of almost 60 families with their generosity.

"Of all the things I have done this year with Student Council and as a teacher, this just might be the most rewarding," Ms McClure said.

With the success of the Nothing But Nets campaign, teachers at Warren Central look to increase the number of in-school oppurtunities for students to participate in service to the community. The effects of student initiative is what fuels service groups like National Honor Society, Student Council, and Key Club, but it is obivous to see that now, students who aren't in these groups are being given the chance to have the same feeling of fufillment and gratification as those who are.

"It's really cool that we have so many oppurtunities to make a difference in our school. I hope that with the money I gave the families will be able to stay healthy and happy."

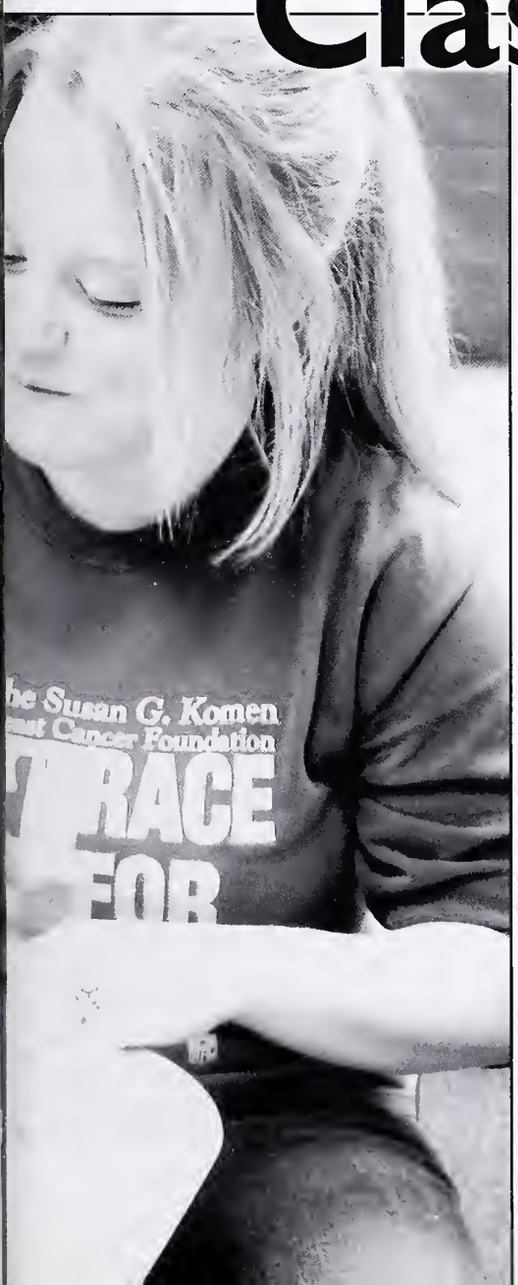
Class Celebration

Celebracion, célébration, feier; celebration can be said many different ways.



Classes don't always have to be about work. Sometimes they can be rather festive.

Take for instance foreign language classes. They had numerous reasons to celebrate the ethnicity of a specific group in order to enhance understanding of their culture. Students get to experience the culture first hand, and it's more exciting in the classroom.

Cinco de Mayo, which is a celebration of Mexico gaining its independence from mother Spain, is one of the most popular because it includes a celebration of Mexico's culture, food, and music. Every year around May 5, Spanish classes celebrate the holiday with food and music. This allows students to be part of the customs of Mexico and its history by experiencing them.

"It doesn't just allow you to have fun. It allows you to learn about a culture," Spanish student India Orr stated.

Another commonly known foreign language celebration is Mardi Gras. In French class, it is a day that allows students to party with beads, taste a variety of French dishes, and sing numerous French songs.

"The most significant benefits of foreign language celebrations are the experience of different cultures and seeing what the celebrations are like in different countries like Japan. In Japanese class, we have fun and experience real Japanese holidays. Two celebrations in my class are Girls' Day and Boy's Day," Japanese student Sara Moore said.

It is a long way down an academic road, but at the end is a reward for its students. Well, even if it is for the learning process.

The foreign language department may have the biggest claim to celebrations in school, the English department knows how to have fun too.

On April 23, the date of William Shakespeare's birth and death, English teachers across the school held in-class celebrations. This literature holiday caused some rivalry between the English department and the math department's observation of Pi Day, 3.14 (March 14th). Ultimately, both days were filled with educational fun and some relaxation in the true spirit of a school party.

Outside The Box

Math projects teach students to apply their knowledge to bigger, better things.

Good teachers know that students learn in three distinct ways: visual (worksheets and textbooks), auditory (lecture and general discussion), or kinesthetic (learning by doing).

Research shows that students respond best to participating in an activity or building a product because it shows them the relevance of what they are learning in the outside world.

That was the aim of a new standard in Geometry, "Geometry in the Real World" and a handful of other math department assignments. Students are more interested in a class when they see first hand the relevance that class will have in the future.

Ms. Gaerte, Geometry-X and AP Calculus teacher, has always been excited at the chance to get her students more interested in math, and "Geometry in the Real World" has given her that chance. Though it wasn't her original plan to have projects in her math classes, Ms. Gaerte has been pleased with the results. Any of her students would tell you that she draws comparisons from her own personal experiences or stories of others in real life and math on a regular basis.

Senior Quentin Pike said, "I wish I could do it again," referring to the project and commented on the variety of ideas presented. For example, inspired by an interest in architecture, a group of students created tools to cut perfect angles by using laws of the isosceles triangle.

Geometry isn't the only math class expanding the horizon with projects. Algebra students participated in an assignment using proportions to enlarge or shrink existing objects using a myriad of materials.

Sophomore Sam Parkinson chose the DVD version of The Mighty Ducks, making it five times larger (three and a half feet tall and about two feet wide) by blowing the box and disc covers up at Kinkos and constructing the box out of carboard. The giant paper disc was then placed in the box. Assignments where high school students can have fun and learn at the same time are a great benefit to the school. Teachers and students alike see the use of projects and creativity in learning as a positive idea.

> When the project applies to the class and the real world, it can be a great addition to the curriculum.

Paint The Year

Sculpting, painting, and photography are only a few of the things that Warren art students do to express themselves.

"Creativity can solve almost any problem. The creative act, the defeat of habit by originality, overcomes everything."- George Lois

Students possess their own unique way of expressing themselves. Whether it be through music, writing, fashion, sports, acting, culinary arts, or any other of the numerous activities, a passion remains untouchable.

One genre of expression that has been prominent since Romanticism commenced and finds a warm home in our school is art. It is one full of emotion and a wide variety of classes to select from. Ceramics, painting, drawing, and media arts are all courses featured in the art department.

Students participating in these classes range from connoisseurs to apprentices. Those who have been familiar with crafting their whole lives dedicate an extravagant amount of time, perfecting his or her product's details. Those who are studying it for the first time acquire techniques of his or her own by examining peers and getting active. No matter which category students fall into, a majority of them would agree that art plays a large role in their lives.

"I use art to express the things I can't say or things I shouldn't say," explained photography student Brittany Moore. "Other people's art tells me a story. It is a way people connect without words."

One highlight of every art student's aspiration is, none other than, the art show. For weeks preceding this colorful event, class time was spent preparing. Confection includes brainstorming, or for those brave souls who prefer to go on a whim, just a simple idea to start a project. When it is finally near, students really engage in vigorous work. Photographers complete mat arrangements as touch up strokes are added to canvases. After finalizations are made, the work is displayed in the media center for a week of critique and praise.

Life is full of ups and downs, emotions are plenty. Some may choose to record these feelings by song, others by choreographed dance. Some will even find beauty in the simplest form and create masterpieces.

"You can't learn art and it's something that can't be taught; you just have to have the eye for it."

Meet The Press

Warren students learn the powers of television to gain priceless experience.

Every school day at 7:35 classes tune in to Warren Live, the daily news show for everything Warren. Television and broadcasting flourished this year due to the hard work of all the students involved and the initiative of both the recently departed Dr. Jarrett and new broadcasting administrator Mr. Mike Jenson.

Members of the Warren Live morning show took home the Newscaster State Championship for outstanding achievement in all aspects of production in a morning news show. This was the first time that Warren Central was awarded with this particular state title. The efforts of two seniors, Ondraius Richardson and Amber LaFever, also won them individual awards at the competition. The individual state championship for anchoring was presented to Amber while Ondraius finished second in the documentary category.

Still, the main duty of the show was to keep track of the year as it progressed, and when a story needed covering or a event needed promotion, Warren Live was there. Memorable moments from the year in television include footage from a sellout Aida show where Mr. Colby shaved his beard for the first time in two months, day-by-day analysis of a record-setting Huddle Up Against Hunger campaign, and of course, highlights from every win of the undefeated football season.

The new commercial group, Dub-C remix crew, and production staff have all added to the success of the show. This year, students dabbled in advertising by filming commercials for bookstore items like Mentos as well as public service announcements regarding attendance and behavior. To keep the show fun and spontaneous, the Dub-C remix crew went to work with an impressive collection of music videos featuring Warren Staff and students. Lastly, the behind-the-scenes workers from cameramen and producers helped to bring it all together.

Broadcasting grew larger than ever before, becoming more and more an integral part of Warren Central's elite programs.

> "I am so honored to receive the awards that I have and I hope they can benefit me in the future."

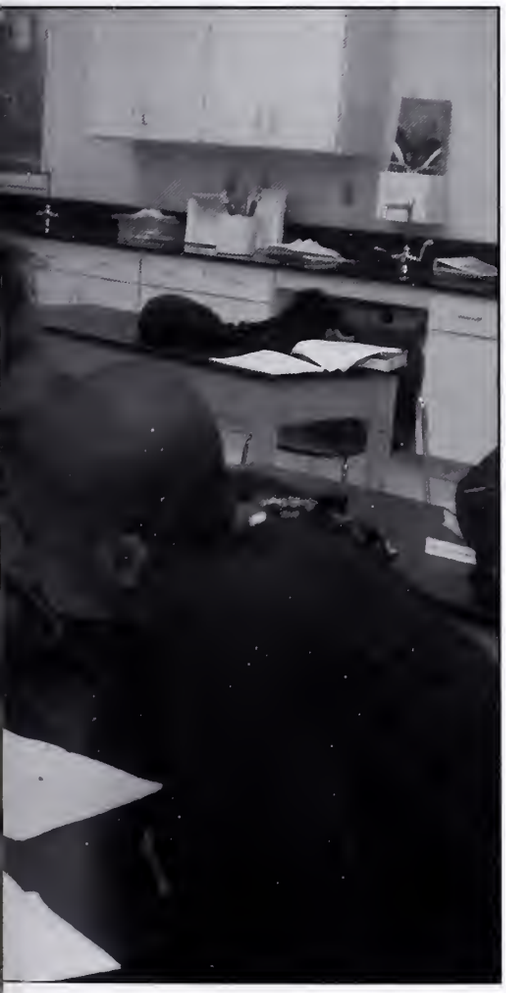
Cuttin' It Up

Slicing, dicing, chopping, stabbing and carving. Sound like fun?



Visualize entering a classroom with a terrible smell of bleach and deceased animal in the air, and a cat is in a pan on a lab table. The teacher orders you to get your supplies, which includes gloves and an incision knife and then orders you to make an incision in the center of the animal. You make the incision, not really prepared to see what is inside.

As the teacher explains the animal's anatomy, liquids emerge from the body and fall onto the table and your gloves. The teacher then tells you to dig your hand into the animal and locate an artery or organ. In order to do that, you must remove organs from your view.

From the other terrible smell of the classroom to the sight of the deceased animal on the lab table, how could dissecting not be intimidating? Love it or hate it, dissections turned out to be a needed experience.

"You get the hands-on experience and a better understanding of the anatomy," Anatomy and Physiology student Misty Gray said.

Many students entered classes such as Anatomy and Physiology and Marine Biology without knowing that participation in dissection was part of their grade. Once the cutting began though, most students enjoyed it and its benefits.

The purpose of the dissections was to make comprehending both the anatomy and physiology of the animals much easier. It was also the closest way to comprehending the human body.

Dissecting was not as simple as it seemed to be. Students not only had to engage in dissection, they also had to understand it. In Anatomy and Physiology, students had to dissect a cat and know its body parts for an upcoming exam, which ranged from the organs to the arteries of the animal.

Dissection was not only a first hand experience, it was also a better way of receiving the knowledge and understanding the body. Many students felt that dissection was more helpful than any other method that could be presented.

"You learn better and retain more information with the dissection than videos and a text book," Gray stated.

"My favorite part about dissections is getting to use the scalpel because I've always wanted to be a veterinarian."

Together Is Better

Warren students take pride in teaching children around Warren Township.

Some students at Warren Central were lucky enough to experience working with children whether it be at the Early Childhood Center or the elementary and middle schools in Warren township. One class in particular is cadet teaching.

Cadet teaching is a two-semester class that is offered to seniors who have a passion for teaching. On average there are 15 students in the class. Besides passion, there are some practical requirements for the cadet teaching: the student must be able to drive, they must have been accepted by Butler University, they must have perfect attendance, and they must maintain a B- average or better. As for students in the cadet teaching class, they don't just teach, they also have to do such things as attend a staff meeting at school, write a journal about their experience teaching children, and make poster boards on different topics.

The first semester the students will get assigned an elementary or middle school and the second semester the students get to choose which one they would rather teach.

To start the day the cadet teachers will begin with some sort of start up activity. Senior Katie Wyn starts her fourth grade class at Lakeside Elementary with an activity called success, which usually lasts 20 minutes. When the class is finished they will continue on with reviewing the previous nights work such as graphs, division, analogies, and multiplication. To help build their strength in those areas, students will play a game called "Around the World", which is when they get asked different questions about what they may be tested on or a lesson they just learned that day; they will continue playing until someone gets the question wrong, then they have to start all over.

"I feel like an actual teacher and someone who all my students and mentors can depend on," stated Senior Katie Wyn.

The cadet teachers may all be uncertain on what they want to do later down the road, but they have one thing in common; they all share the passion to teach.

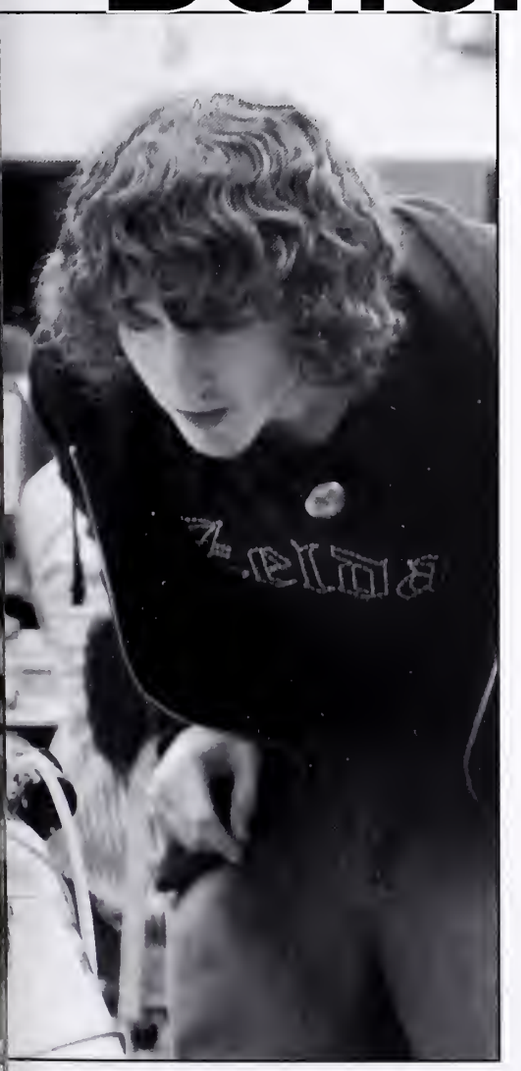
Benefits for the Future



The Walker Career Center offers beneficial classes for many different careers

For the past 30 years the Walker Career Center has offered students classes that prepare them for life after high school. Whether a student chooses to go to college or trade school, the WCC has it all.

The Career Center offers classes such as computer aided drafting, academy of financing, photography, dental assisting, health careers, and many more classes.

In what is called the WCC Garage, there are classes like building trades, welding, small engines repair, and auto collusion and repair. There are many great classes offered all throughout Warren Central, but the Career Center highlights some of the best.

One of the classes that may spark students' attention and parents as well is the computer aided drafting class (CAD). This class prepares students for architectural design and engineering. As a sophomore, students are required to take design processing; this class prepares them for the next two years of CAD. As a junior the student takes beginning CAD which then leads on to advanced CAD their senior year. CAD is a block period, so the students stay in the class for two periods each day.

In CAD students design on computers. Some of what they design are multi views, renderings, two story houses, and mechanical pieces.

"CAD really helps you learn some of the hardest things in engineering; it prepares you for what you will encounter once you get out into the workforce," senior Josh Adams said.

The students have the opportunity to receive an internship through the class. Senior Kaylan Napier was offered an internship at DLZ the summer of 2006. DLZ is rated in the top 100 of one of the best design firms in the United States. After her internship was finished, she was offered a job at DLZ and continued to work there after school.

Mr. Edward Cuddy, assistant superintendent of secondary education, got the work underway and spearheaded it to public awareness. Instead Mr. Scott Chandler, principal of the Warren Career Center, costing approximately $6 million and taking three years to construct, the career center opened its doors along with Warren Central at the beginning of the school year.

In celebration of the new facility, the career center had an open house on November 16. An estimated 3,000 people from the community came to tour the building and to see its equipment demonstrated.

"Fantastic is the only word that can describe the outcome of the open house," said Mr. Chandler. Mr. Chandler added that what thrilled him the most was "the number of young persons from the first grade to the ninth that came with their parents to see the career center."

"One of the reasons behind the open house was to show the public how proud we are of the community involvement that helped to build the career center. Because without the involvement, the career center wouldn't have been a reality."

Approximately $2.3 million was spent on equipment for the career center and administration building, but the community helped cut down some of the costs. Various metal products for welding and machine trades classes were given to the career center. A new car which had fallen off a train was given to the career center by General Motors.

In addition to helping with the facilities, the community helped "design the building, identified equipment and tools and helped us develop a complete curriculum by telling us what skills students must have," explained Mr. Chandler.

A student studying at the career center had a choice of 18 different vocational training courses. Each of these courses ears a three-hour block in which a student received three credits for passing a semester.

Mr. Chandler explained that there were 875 students enrolled in the vocational courses. He also stated that there was an average of 375 students enrolled in one-hour classes each period.

In the 18 vocational classes, a student could take anything from diesel mechanics to horticulture. In food service students opened the Threshold, which was the restaurant located in the career center. The students ran the whole thing. They prepared the food, acted as waiters and waitresses, and they cleaned the Threshold after a day of business.

Another course was child care. In the class students actually took care of children who were dropped off by their working parents.

In diesel mechanics students worked on Mack, Detroit, Cummings and Allison diesel engines.

The Business Department was moved to the career center. Data entry and the Secretary Lab were two new vocational courses added to the department. Mrs. Vernita Lockwood, Business Department chairperson, was thrilled with the career center and all of its fabulous facilities. Miss Janet Occhiuto, Secretary Lab instructor, was quite impressed with the new equipment in the lab.

In the evening, adult education classes were conducted in the career center. The classes were open to any Indiana resident who was 16 or older. The classes were arranged in four different categories. There were adult high school completion classes, adult vocational classes, adult special interest classes and university extension classes through Indiana State and Ball State universities. The adult classes began on October 4 and ended on May 5. Approximately 275 people enrolled in t

Memory Lane

For the past 30 years, the Walker Career Center has played a part in students lives

With donations from various organizations and the support of the community the Career Center opened its doors in 1976, with its first director, Scott Chandler. In addition to serving high school students, adult education programs were also offered beginning in 1976.

In the following year, Charlie Davis became director of the WCC. The building trades program began the construction of their first house on Heather Hills Road. Since then the program has constructed 22 houses. Also in this year was the first radio broadcast from WEDM.

The first GED test was offered in 1978.

The beginning of the Academy of Finance was in 1988, and in 2000 was the start of the Academy of Information Technology, which is now the Indiana Information Technology.

Project Lead the Way, a four-year engineering program was introduced in 2001, and is still a program students can take in the WCC. The First Robotics team also competed in this year.

The WCC expanded its classes in 2003 to incorporate more cosmetology and health career programs. The second auto service lab was added last year. Also last year was the beginning of the Academy of entrepreneurship.

"Before the WCC opened classes part of Warren Central, classes were very minimal," Director of the WCC Ms. Frey said. "As new programs have come along, old and new programs have become more complex and technically advanced as we work to match industry standards."

Other changes in the WCC include an increase emphasis on the importance in academics and how they apply to career and technical areas, becauses of this the technical skills of teachers have become more complex so students are taught up-to-date skills. Equipment is also constantly updated so it reflects what is current in the industry.

The phrase "doing it BIG" is too commonly heard around the Warrior Nation. So of course the sports team would follow suit by performing with dominance, picking teams off one by one, and leaving their competition in the dust.

Just a few examples is a state history setting 4peat performed by an undefeated football team. Throughout their entire season, they shocked the Warrior Nation by defeating every team they took on rather easily. And of course, we are all proud of All-American, Mr. Football, Darren Evans.

A back-to-back state champion boys cross-country team, who at Semi-State placed third, was able to come back and overcome their competition. A nearly perfect season goes to the volleyball team with a season record of 29-3.

For the first time in over five years the lady Warrior soccer team was able to overcome the Lawrence Central Bears 2-1 and move on to Sectional finals. And as for setting school history and records, the boys basketball team brought the school's first ever MIC title home after defeating Center Grove 67-63. Props will surely go to seniors Jamie Arnold and Chris Conte for placing fifth and third, respectively, at the individual state wrestling meet, and the entire wrestling team for putting on a stunning performance at Sectionals and bringing home the Sectional title.

Also, senior Corey Johnson made his way to the State diving competition and walked away with 13th place. And with early high rankings in state for the boys and girls track teams, one can only expect another great State run. As you can see, the list of accomplishments goes on and on, but you get the picture.

Each and every athlete does what he or she can do to make a difference in this little town of ours. They push themselves to the limit, get up early for practice, survive two-a-days, and face the reality that at any moment they might break a bone, but to many athletes this is what makes it all worth while.

We are all a part of sports at Warren. Whether playing, spectating, cheering, or taping an ankle, we all know what Warrior sports are all about. The athletes go out, put the competition to rest as they do their best, bring home even more county, MIC, Sectional, Regional, Semi-state, and State titles.

"Last year's experience at State was nerve-racking and scary but has helped me know what to expect this year. I am ready to improve my time in the 100 meter and show the other competition how much I have grown in hopes of another state title."

- Ebony Wright, 10

Celebrating in the end zone, Adrien Robinson, senior wide receiver, gets excited for one of his first touchdowns of the season. The crowd roared for the team, as they advanced their winning ways during the homecoming game against Carmel.

SPECIAL SEASON, SPECIAL ending.

A lot of people would agree that the first game of the season holds the map for the rest of the year.

There was nothing but pressure for the football team. After coming off three straight championship seasons, the only thing the team was seeking was their fourth straight title.

The treasure at the end of this map, of course, would be the State championship and an undefeated season.

No one in Indiana high school football history had ever accomplished this feat. But better yet, the Warriors were expected to repeat their winning ways before the season even started.

They were returning All-American seniors Jerimy Finch, Florida-Bound, and Virginia Tech recruit Darren Evans, who both contributed greatly to the team last year.

The defensive line and offensive lines were also expected to do great things, and the team was ready to go out and show everyone what they were made of.

The only major question that remained was the coach. After Kevin Wright left for a head coaching job in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Principal Tony Burchett announced his replacement in, then, defensive coordinator, Steve Tutsie.

After a summer of rigorous practices, the Warriors' first challenge was against the Franklin Central Flashes.

Warren came out strong and never let up. Evans scored his and the Warriors' first touchdown of the season on a 31-yard run that gave Warren an early 7-0 lead. Evans followed with two more rushing touchdowns before Franklin Central finally scored one. Evans would rush for one more before the end of the half, leaving the team with a lead of 28-7.

After halftime, Warren came back out on the field, and caught Franklin Central off guard. Quarterback Matt Upshaw aired a ball out to Chris Adkins as the play went for a 54-yard touchdown. The Warriors now gave opposing teams another thing to look out for: the passing game, something most weren't expecting.

Warren dominated the second half, winning their season opener with a score of 61-7, only letting the Flashes score once.

The win showed Warren still had a championship caliber team, and the rest of the season panned out the same way. The rest... is history.

A 4peat OF HISTORY.

It's something like a fairy tale. A storybook ending.

Winning four consecutive state titles in football is something that has never happened in Indiana history, but on November 25, 2006, the Warriors had victory in their minds and a change of history right before them. There was only one thing standing in their way, the Carmel Greyhounds.

Carmel came into the game ranked fourth in state and with a record of 12-3, and in the MIC, their only loss came from none other than the Warriors themselves.

The Warriors run to State was quite an easy one, defeating Franklin Central, Richmond, and North Central in the Sectionals, where they scored an average of 48 points against the three teams and only allowed one touchdown, which was scored in their game against North Central.

During Regional play, the Warriors faced cross-town rivals Ben Davis for the second time that season. The Warriors weren't phased by the Giants and took them down 48-7.

The Warriors went on the road for the Semi-State game against Columbus North, with a 56-0 victory.

It was finally time, time to show the state, and anyone who didn't think the Warren Central Warriors could make history, that it was their time to shine.

The first quarter of the game ended in a tie after the 25-yard run by senior quarterback Matt Upshaw, which Carmel answered back with a touchdown tying the game 7-7.

The second quarter was followed by more action with a 57-yard run by senior Brad Ellington, and then continued on by senior fullback Darren Evans' first touchdown of the night, with a 36-yard run. Carmel then scored with an impressive pass into the end zone, making the score now 21-14.

But the Warriors were not done yet as Evans drove the field and made the score 28-14 at the end of the half.

The second half of the game required for the defense to step up. The Warriors did not have any turnovers, but Carmel, unfortunately for them, had four. The four turnovers came from two recovered fumbles, and senior Semiaji Wright picked off two interceptions.

The defense didn't stop there however. Senior Michael Bell blocked a punt in the third quarter that led to a one yard run by Evans. The score was 35-14, and with that the Warriors clinched their fourth straight title.

"I'd be lying if I didn't think we were the best team in the state," head coach Steve Tutsie said early in the season, and with the final victory the Warriors received, and a 15-0 record, he was obviously right.

When every second counts.

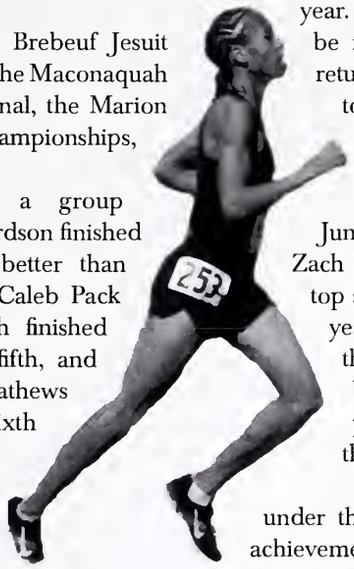
Though the Warriors did not match their undefeated season last year, they finished with an impressive 215-6 record and won all but two regular season meets.

The team placed first in the Brebeuf Jesuit Invitational, the Harrison Invitational, the Maconaquah Invitational, the New Prairie Invitational, the Marion County Championships, the MIC Championships, and Sectionals and Regionals.

At state, the team made a group improvement. Senior Ondraius Richardson finished fifth overall this year, two places better than last year. For the team, sophomore Caleb Pack finished third, junior Micah Aldrich finished fourth, senior Cody Smith finished fifth, and juniors Orion Wenrich and Joel Mathews rounded out the top seven running sixth and seventh respectively.



The Warriors will be losing three top runners next year; De'Sean Turner, Ondraius Richardson, and Cody Smith. Turner has committed to IU on a full ride scholarship, and Richardson and Smith are also expecting to run in college.

"They will be greatly missed for their leadership and work ethic. They will be hard to replace," Coach Brooks said of the trio.

Despite the loss, the team is still optimistic that they will be able to continue their success next year. Four of the top seven runners will be returning and there are several other returning JV runners who are expected to step up and fill the remaining varsity spots. Returning are sophomore Caleb Pack, and juniors Micah Aldrich, Orion Wenrich, and Joel Mathews. Junior Shaun Doerflein and freshmen Zach Disney are expected to round out the top seven. No matter who runs varsity next year, the top seven will be supported by the JV and freshmen team members, who braved cold, sometimes wet weather to paint up and support their teammates throughout the tournament season.

With the 2006 State Championship under their belts, the Warriors still had more achievements to conquer. They ran in the Foot Locker Regional meet over Thanksgiving weekend. In addition, Turner and Richardson were members of the Indiana All Star Team and competed in the Mid East Meet of Champions in Dayton, Ohio on November 18th. Turner went on to place in the National meet in San Diego, California.

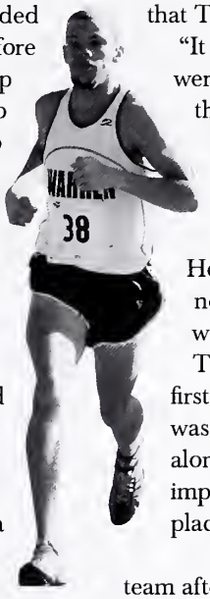
Two MUCH IS NEVER ENOUGH.

The LaVern Gibson course in Terre Haute was a familiar place of triumph for the Warren boys cross country team.

Fierce winds and a muddy course added to the excitement of the race. The year before the team went into the state championship with an undefeated record; and that wasn't so much the case this year. After placing third to rivals Franklin Central and Carmel at Semi-State, the Warriors had to use the loss as motivation to dominate at State.



The nipping winds burned against Senior De'Sean Turner's skin as he approached the starting line with an eager state of mind. He led his group of fellow top runners: seniors Ondraius Richardson and Cody Smith, juniors Joel Mathews, Micah Aldrich, and Orion Wenrich, and sophomore Caleb Pack. The boom of the gun echoed through the air and the team was off like a stampede.

Senior star Ondraius Richardson made an impact on the overall performance of the team. While he was making his way to the front of the pack, Richardson encouraged fellow teammates sophomore Caleb Pack and senior Cody Smith.

"I made sure they were where they needed to be because they were the key to winning," Richardson said.

There were several puddles of mud and water that Turner was first to endure.

"It was hard to run through the puddles that were similar to small ponds, but I tried not to let the elements effect my running," Turner said.

While most of the veterans were focused on the task ahead, sophomore Caleb Pack was very nervous about the race. Pack placed 49th at state, and third overall for the team. However, junior Joel Mathews was completely new to the course and was just as excited as he was nervous.

Turner was on the home stretch leading in first place and finished with a time of 15:54. He was focused on where Richardson was coming along in the race. Richardson made an incredible improvement form being back in the pack to placing fifth overall and second for the team.

When the trophy was handed over to the team after scoring 100 points, it served a new meaning. It wasn't about the hardware, but the respect the team had been looking for after placing third at Semi-State.

"I was proud of all the guys because it is a lot harder to win a back to back State championship,"

The pack of the top five runners start off the Park Tudor Invite with a strong kick. The ladies finished well in the long run placing first out of nine teams.

Putting it on the line.

Running as a pack and establishing a common ground with the team did not come easily. All Star camp helped to fill that personal gap, and the ladies opened up to each other through basketball tournaments, and ultimate frisbee.

The seniors took the lead in making the season serious and several positive things were accomplished according to senior Latasha Williams.

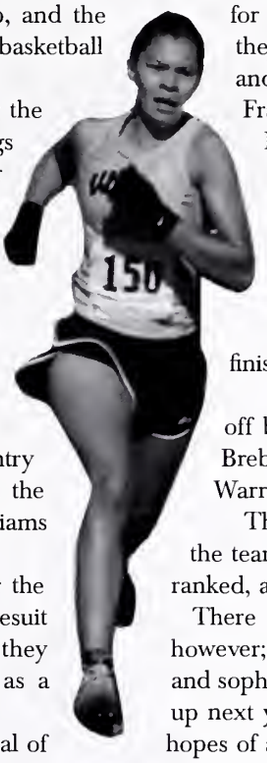
"As seniors, we stepped up this year and the team became united as one," Williams said. Her motivation proved triumphant.

During the Franklin Central meet, the majority of the team achieved personal records.

"This was the best year of cross country because there were positive attitudes and the team stayed healthy," Senior Dana Williams said.

One of the most important meets for the team was the Park Tudor Invite. Brebeuf Jesuit was an opponent the Lady Warriors knew they had to shut down. The entire team ran as a group for a good portion of the race.

This enabled the ladies to make several of the top spots, which was the key to winning and advancing to regionals.



The biting cold weather showed no mercy for the team at Regionals. The seniors felt they ran the way they were supposed to and placed third overall finishing behind Franklin Central and Center Grove. Senior Latasha Williams set a personal record of 15:35 and was awarded All-Regional with fellow Warrior, Carmen Alejo.

Alejo finished the race with a traumatic ending. Her body was slowly deteriorating as she neared the last stretch of the race, and after crossing the finish line, Alejo collapsed.

Despite having a teammate rushed off by ambulance, the team triumphed over Brebeuf with a score of 25-42. The win put the Warriors first out of nine teams.

The outcome of Semi-State was not what the team had hoped for. The top 13 teams were ranked, and the Warriors placed 16th.

There were several other things to celebrate:, however; returning freshmen, Breauna Turner, and sophomore Emily Wright are expected to step up next year and help to carry the team, in their hopes of a winning season, and maybe even a run at the State meet.

SHOWING OFF THE TALENT.

The volleyball team had a season to remember. One to add in the record books.

The ladies put fourth the effort needed to make it all the way. The seniors stepped up, and gave a lot for the younger players to look up to.

Throughout the entire season many records were set and many goals reached. Coach Dan Hagist was thrilled for the season and thought it was one of the best seasons in Warren history with a final record of 29-3.

The climax of the season came a little over half way through. The girls were ranked third going into a match against second ranked Center Grove. The stands were crowded, and much of the Warrior Nation came out to support the ladies.

The intensity grew with every game. During the first set the ladies came up rather short with a score of 12-25, but showed no signs of giving up.

They won the next bout by a mere four points and ended the set 25-21. The next one the ladies won with a little more dominance in their stature with a final score of 25-14. The fourth set got a little more hectic, the ladies were down to the Trojans, and weren't able to come back. They lost that one 22-25.

It was down to the final match, it would determine if the ladies would suffer their first lose of the season, or remain undefeated and move up in the state rankings.

Seniors Kiley Kent and Britani Oliver did all they could to help amp up the team and crowd. They hit the ball hard, blocked well, but fell short to the Trojans with a score of 10-15. The ladies were devastated, but they weren't going to let their season end there.

They were determined to have a winning season, and make their coaches proud of them.

The Warriors kept up the good work, and continued on the season with high notes winning the Marion County Tournament and the Metropolitan Interscholastic Conference.

All-State players Kiley Kent and Brittani Oliver set many records including Kent's 326 assists and Oliver's 34 blocks and .437 hitting efficiency.

Hardwork, NO REGRETS.

Strong defense was key in outplaying the Greenfield Central Cougars in the first round of Sectionals. The boys worked well as a team and came up with the win 2-1. Freshman Christian Wilson definitely stepped up, scoring both goals for the Warriors.

However, next up for the team was the New Palestine Dragons, ranked 25th in the state. The Warriors knew this was not going to be an easy game, but they prepared themselves with hard work and a lot of practice.

This year had gone very well for the boys. They greatly improved from previous years, and held a record of eight wins, seven losses, and three ties.

As the clock started, the Warriors knew what had to be done. They would have to play 80 minutes of intense soccer. There would be no time for slacking off. This was what they had worked towards all season.

In the first half, the Dragons scored first, giving them the early lead 1-0. However, the Warriors replied quickly with Jonathon Guillen scoring one for the Warriors and tying up the game.

The Warriors continued to battle it out, and controlled the ball very well in the mid-field, giving them lots of offensive opportunities. Yet, the Warriors could not transition fast enough into defense, giving the Dragons another opportunity to score. This gave the Dragons the lead of one by halftime.

The halftime break seemed to boost the boys up. Rafi Saleh came out ready to make a comeback, and scored quickly against the Dragons, tying it up yet again.

The boys continued to work hard in the mid field just as they did throughout the first half, but they could not seem to keep up with New Palestine. Passing and dribbling seemed to go the Warriors way, and the Warriors fought the enitre game.

The game ended with a loss 4-2, ending the Warriors 2006 season. Despite the loss, the boys played very well.

"This was probably the best teamwork we've had all year," Senior Rob Carney said. "We played our best, and I have no regrets."

Even though the 2006 team's season had come to an end, the boys felt very accomplished for having played so well. This game gave them the fulfillment of the great team they had been working for all season.

JUST IN THE kick OF TIME.

There is no doubt the lady Warriors had winning on their minds as they took the field against the Lawrence Central Bears.

The ladies held a season record of seven wins, seven losses, and one tie, and were ready to add another win and advance further in sectionals.

This game would define the team and give them the success they have been working for all year. Lawrence Central has repeatedly defeated the Warriors, not giving them a win in nearly ten years and knocking the Warriors out of sectionals the past three years.

Excitement filled the players anxious hearts. They knew the bears had various good players, and they would have to battle it out until the end. Senior captains Cara Burchett and Sarah Phelps really stepped it up and encouraged the team, helping to rid the nervousness.

It was a very physical game, but the ladies continued to battle it out. Early in the first half, Burchett drew a foul. This gave Phelps her free shot, putting the Warriors up 1-0.

Although the ladies had quite a few chances to score additional goals in the first half, the score was still 1-0 at half time.

The ladies knew they were going to have to step it up a notch to keep the lead against the Bears. Just as it was expected, Lawrence Central put the ladies under a lot of pressure, but the ladies continued to play their game and keep the lead.

"It was a tremendous defensive effort by all of our players to preserve the win," Head Coach Gary Roberts said.

As the time ran out, the ladies hard work and great efforts paid off. They finally defeated the Lawrence Central Bears and were rewarded with the advance in sectionals for the second consecutive year.

Cathedral was up for Warren Central in the final round of sectionals. Although the ladies played well, the talented Irish defeated the ladies 3-0.

It was another strong year for the ladies. There were many talented underclassmen that stepped up to play a big role this year. However, the seniors were persistent in providing leadership and talent to help the players come together as a team.

Continuing on the tradition, the cheerleaders do push-ups after every touchdown the Warrior football team scores. The ladies got a workout of 76 push-ups this game as the Warriors pummeled the Ben Davis Giants.

KEEPING THE tradition ALIVE.

Whether it was raining, snowing, or sunny, the Warren Central football cheerleaders were there cheering along the now 4-time state championship football team.

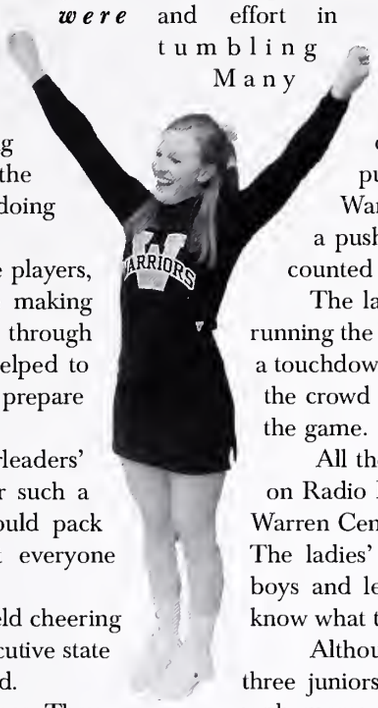
The ladies were not only on the sidelines pumping up the fans and creating a team spirit atmosphere to encourage the football players, but also excelled by doing extra things off the field.

They often had candy bags for the players, decorated their lockers, and spent time making huge posters for the Warriors to break through as they entered the field. These things helped to boost the players energy level way up and prepare them with confidence and optimism.

State finals was one of the cheerleaders' favorite games. They had to prepare for such a huge game with all the people who would pack the stands and all the immense spirit everyone displayed.

"It was a great feeling to be on the field cheering on our football team to their fourth consecutive state championship," senior Christy Gegner said.

Every game was an amazing experience. They were the source for leading spirit chants and getting the student body involved in the game.



Along with cheering, the ladies put hard work and effort in every day to perfect stunts and tumbling performed at every game.

Many traditions have evolved in the past few years in football cheerleading. A major one is the push-ups. For every touchdown the Warriors scored, the ladies would do a push up for each point as the crowd counted them out.

The ladies also started the tradition of running the W.C.H.S. flags on the track when a touchdown is scored. This was sure to keep the crowd alive and focus their attention to the game.

All the varsity squad was invited to air on Radio Now 93.1 to broadcast the talent Warren Central's football team had this year. The ladies' were proud to brag about the boys and let everyone around Indianapolis know what they would bring to the field.

Although there was five seniors, and a three juniors, the squad consisted of mostly sophomores this year. The young talent that was provided gives a positive outlook for next year's squad.

RECORD BREAKING history.

"Winning the MIC conference gave our team the confidence to continue the season with the same athletic ability, and advance our record," Senior Adiren Robinson said.

The MIC game was against the Center Grove Trojans and gave the Warriors the home court advantage. Both of the teams had an undefeated record in the MIC, and the Warrior's heads were up because of their recent domination over the North Central Panthers.

The game started off rather slowly, but the Warriors pumped up the pressure and really turned the heat on in the offense and defense.

The Warriors were ahead 39-30 at the end of a grueling three quarters, but the Trojans had no thoughts of giving up quite yet. Center Grove star player, Kitchel, scored 24 of his 34 in the fourth, trying his best to advance the Trojans, but his efforts weren't quite up to par with the Warriors.

Kitchel's run put the Trojans within three points of the Warriors, but a steal from junior Josh Jones, followed by a dunk, and three free throws by junior Walter Offut in the final minute put the game away for the Warriors. Offut scored a team high with 28 points.

"Surprisingly, this win wasn't as exciting to me as I thought it would be," said Offut, "but it made me start looking forward to bigger and better things like a State title, where we should be able to accomplish due to the players returning and the experience gained in our hard-fought season."

Along with the victory, the Warriors ended the Trojans' 12 game-winning streak and claimed the school's first ever conference title in boys basketball.

The Warriors continued their winning ways ending their season with a 17-7 record and a great run in the Sectionals. Although the team suffered a close loss to the Lawrence Central Wildcats with a score of 48-51 in the Sectional finals, they defeated Manual, and Arlington in fashionable manners.

The boys ran past the Arlington Golden Knights with a final score of 77-56 after several technical fouls caused by enraged coaches and a valiant effort put forth by the Warriors.

Although the Warriors weren't able to capture the tenth title for Warren history, they played well as a team and made head coach Scott Heady proud of their performances throughout an accomplished season.

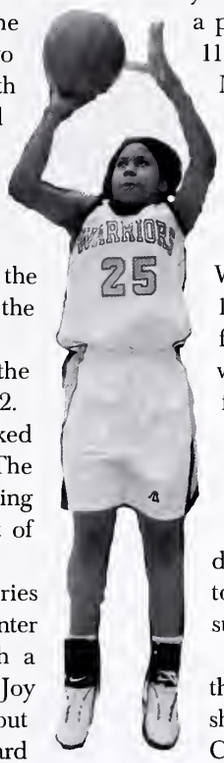
THE PATH TO BOUNCING back.

Being faced with key injured players and a rocky start to the season, the Lady Warriors prevailed through the worst of times and defeated the plague of countless injuries to have a successful season.

The Warriors were returning to the court under the leadership of only two seniors, Anyae Coffer and Sara Smith. Both ladies have contributed to the program and been key players since freshmen year. This season was no exception and both had goals to achieve in mind.



Coffer's positive attitude helped to put a mental layout for the season to advance to the goal of competeing at sectionals. However, the road to the big game was not an easy one. The season's opening game resulted in the ladies losing to the Noblesville Millers, 60-62.

The first game jitters were all worked out and the team was ready to compete. The Warriors had a record of 3-2 before entering the County tournament and fell just short of the title after losing to Brebeuf Jesuit, 52-47.

Once the season was in full gear, injuries slowly started to impact the team. Junior center Teka Flowers suffered a head injury with a minor concussion and two other juniors, Joy Summers and Ashley Thompson, were out with sprained ankles. To top it off, junior guard Lauren Shepherd tore her ACL and was out for the season due to surgery and rehab. Freshman Jordan Barton stepped up and filled the gaps that were left by her injured teammates. The 5'9 freshman was a positive, all-around player and helped to add 11 points during a game against Terre Haute North.

The first round of Sectionals was a physically challenging game against the Cathedral Irish. The first quarter was a neck and neck battle with the Warriors outscoring Cathedral by only one point, 11-10. The Warriors shut out the Irish in the second half 14-7. Coffer helped to eliminate any chance for the opposing team by putting up 16 points with the assistance of Barton scoring 10 in the fourth quarter, ending with the score 44-43.

The team advanced to play the Class 4A number 10 ranked Lawrence North Wildcats and fell short of advancing, 58-43.

Overall, the season was full of ups and downs, but Coach Roger Kirkpatrick refused to dwell on the record of 10-13 in terms of success.

"The Lady Warriors faced a lot of adversity this season. We weathered the storm and showed signs of success throughout the season," Coach Kirkpatrick said.

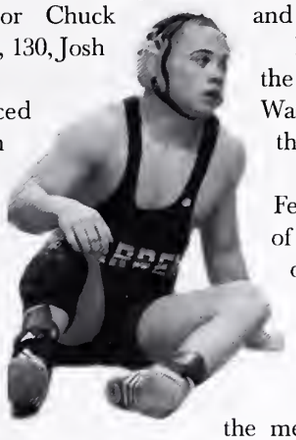
Wrestlers fight for succes.

For the second year in a row, the Warriors were able to bring home the Sectional title and show off their talent.

The wrestlers were able to beat the New Palestine Dragons by 17.5 points, and the boys were able to aquire several individual Sectional titles, including sophomore Nick Odom, 103, junior Chuck Woodard, 152, and seniors Chris Conte, 130, Josh Norris, 135, and Jamie Arnold, 215.



The top four placers advanced to sectionals, giving the Warriors an additional three wrestlers, including sophomore Zach Baughman, 125, senior Grant Berry, 145, and junior Mike VanSkyock, 285.

During Regionals the team's cross-town nemesis, the Perry Meridian Falcons, came back in the picture. The team Regional match was on a Wednesday night at Beech Grove High School. The Warriors first wrestled Southport, dominating 54-16, but fell short to their rival, the Falcons, 58-15.

Although the team's hope of advancing to state was deferred, there was still a chance for individuals to make their way to State at Conseco.

Individual Regionals were, of course, more difficult, but the Warriors still advanced six wrestlers, including Odom, Conte, Norris, Arnold, VanSkyock and Berry.

Semi-State was slightly different because the Warriors were knocked down to just three wrestlers advancing, and no individual Semi-State champs. Second place finishes went to Conte and Arnold, and a third place victory went to Norris.

But finally, individual state was just around the corner and for the seventh year in a row the Warriors sent on three wrestlers to represent this little town of ours.

The first round took place on Friday, February 16. Conte wrestled Chase Davis of Wawasee and defeated him 11-7 in overtime. Norris fell short to Dustin Bruce of Bloomington North 10-4, and Arnold defeated Jamarial Miller of Elkhart Memorial 9-4, which was a major shock to the crowd because Miller came into the meet ranked second in the state. Now the Warriors were down to just two wrestlers left in the meet, Conte and Arnold.

Conte continued on to wrestle with great strength and effort, and ended the meet with a third place finish in the state and Arnold placed fifth in the state.

"I didn't reach my overall goal, but finishing in State is always a good accomplishment to have made," Conte said.

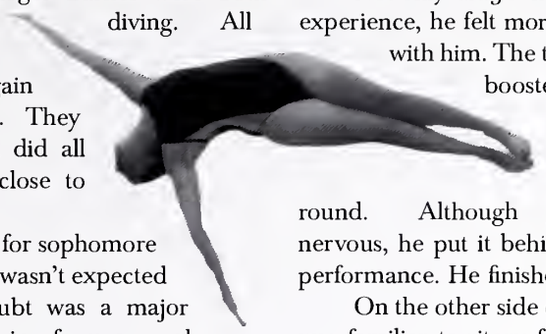
Splashing to victory.

For the first time in Warren Central history, two boys qualified for this year's state swimming and diving competition.

Corey Johnson and Roger Barnes were both eligible for their excellent diving. All year, they practiced their dives over and over again working for this moment. They attended diving camps and did all they could to become as close to perfect as they could.



This year started rough for sophomore Barnes. In the beginning, he wasn't expected to perform as he did. Doubt was a major factor for him. After recovering from a rough season last year, Barnes decided to try again this year. Even though things started shaky, he had the determination.

With hard work and the willpower to overcome the odds, Barnes succeeded to perfect his dives, and towards the end of the season, he started to show out.

On the other hand, senior Johnson earned his second trip to the state finals.

"Last year, I was nervous and just happy to qualify for state," Johnson said, "but this year, I was ready to get down to business."

Not only did Johnson have more confidence and experience, he felt more relieved to have a teammate with him. The two encouraged each other and boosted one another's confidence.

In the state competition, Barnes was chosen to be the first diver to go in every round. Although going first caused him to be nervous, he put it behind him and gave an excellent performance. He finished 15th out of 16.

On the other side of things, this state competition was familiar territory for senior Johnson. He had all the confidence he needed and proceeded on in the competition, coming in 13th out of 16.

The boys were very proud to represent Warren Central this year at state finals. Both divers performed to the best of their ability and finished well.

Although, this was Johnson's last year, Barnes will be back next year working hard to improve his skills and reach new heights.

Developing A TALENTED TEAM.

After losing key senior last season, the Lady Warriors gymnastics team focused on a season of improvement and building a better team.

Seniors leading the team this season were Taylor Booher and Dana Williams. Booher returned after a back injury from freshmen year to help out the team.

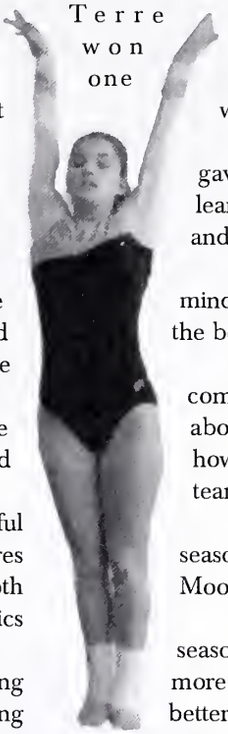
William's was returning for her fourth year on varsity and competed in all-around events but could not compete for a period of time during the season.

Junior Holly Tabor was also a key asset in the season. Tabor was one of the team captains and competed in all events. Her personal best was a score of 8.4.

"The most difficult thing this season was all the new people on the team. They all did a good job and adjusted," said Tabor.

The season was a challenging one for the handful of veterans and group of new-comers. Sophomores Katie Poole and Ashleigh Douglas are both cheerleaders and wanted to participate in gymnastics to perfect their skills.

"Gymnastics is different than cheerleading because you have to be more graceful and cheerleading is more peppy," Poole said.



The pressure was put on the new girls during several important meets. The team competed against Terre Haute North and Cathedral and won one in first place at Senior Night. But, one of the better learning experiences was after placing second to Roncalli.

The team bonded together and gave it their all out on the mats. They all learned to focus and perfect their skills and won a few dual meets.

"Once I get up on the mats, I set my mind to what I have to do and how to get the best score," Douglas said.

Sophomore Anni Mooreland, who competed all-around, was optimistic about the team's accomplishments and how they all adapted to an unfamiliar team.

"We came together at the end of the season, and we did the best we could do," Mooreland said.

The Warriors finished out the season with a one and ten record, but more importantly, meshed to become better gymnasts and friends.

TALENT RETURNS FOR success.

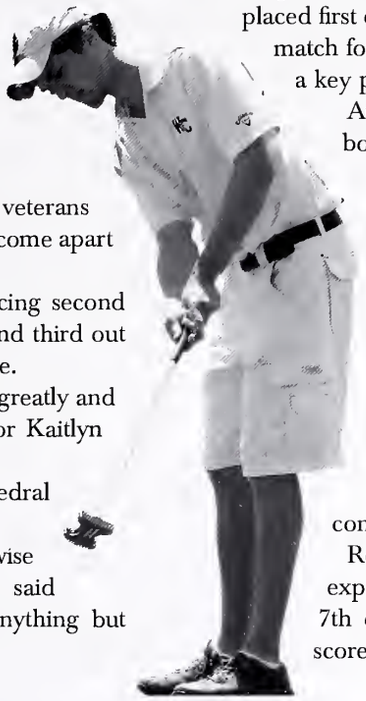
Breaking new records was a small step to success for both the girls and boys golf team as they put a name for themselves this season by advancing with incredible scores and team development.

During the spring, the lady Warriors returned strong all around with senior Kaitlyn Sweeney, junior Amanda Archer and the twin juniors Marie and Melinda Black to add experience and leadership to the team.



The team consisted primarily of golf veterans and the new comers quickly meshed to become apart of a great tradition.

The ladies built stamina up by placing second out of 13 teams in the Ben Davis invite, and third out of 12 teams in both county and conference.

"The team as a whole has improved greatly and was shooting about the same," said senior Kaitlyn Sweeney.

The ladies finished runner up to Cathedral within four strokes for the sectional title.

"This is the best girls team score wise I've had in twelve years of coaching," said head coach Al Darko, "and I can be anything but disappointed."

As for the boys season, several new things were accomplished in the search for an advancement out of Sectionals.

During the Southmont invitational, the team placed first out of 11 teams and was a spotlight match for freshman Matt Spicuzza. He was a key player and shot a 74-stroke.

At the County tournament, the boys came out second overall after an 11th place finish last season. Sophomore Cody Risser placed 4th individually, Spicuzza and freshman, Connor Worley both shot an 81 and senior Mike Johnston shot an 82.

At the sectional meet, the team placed second with a score of 295, trailing just behind Cathedral. The goal of advancing to Regionals was finally conquered.

Regionals proved to be a learning experience for the team. They placed 7th out of 12 teams with a satisfying score of 334.

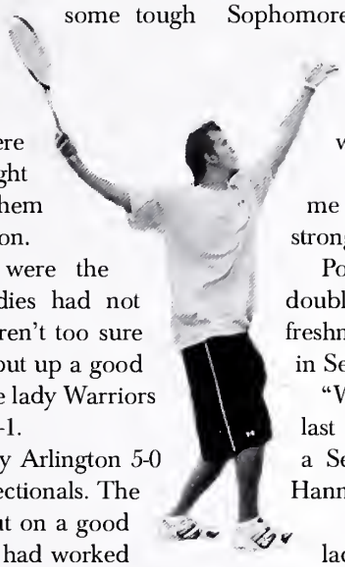
SECTIONAL win MAKES HISTORY.

Winning a Sectional championship, something every team hopes to accomplish, was achieved for the first time in all of Warren Central history by our own ladies' tennis team.

With a tough schedule ahead, the ladies set a high goal to win Sectionals. Hard work and dedication were key for the ladies. Despite some tough losses, the ladies fought through the hard times, and focused on their goal.



Bouncing back from MIC, where the ladies finished seven out of eight teams, the ladies put it behind them and continued on with determination.

Up first for the Warriors were the Lawrence Central Bears. The ladies had not faced the Bears all season and weren't too sure what to expect. Lawrence Central put up a good fight, but they were no match for the lady Warriors who came out with their first win 4-1.

Next up, the ladies blew away Arlington 5-0 to move on to the final round of Sectionals. The ladies knew they would need to put on a good performance, but it was what they had worked for all season.

Despite the intense atmosphere, the ladies came out confident and ready to defeat the only team that stood between them and a Sectional championship title, the Lawrence North Wildcats. After having already beat the Wildcats twice this season, the ladies had the confidence to go along with their talent.

It was a close match between the two teams. Sophomore Katie Poole fought until the end with her opponent. After winning the first set, her opponent made a comeback and won the second causing a tie breaking set, which Poole won 7-3.

"There was a lot of pressure on me to win," Poole said. "I knew I had to stay strong to come out on top and help my team."

Poole, along with senior Olivia Edens and doubles team of sophomore Chrissy Hopp and freshman Jordan Barton, won all three matches in Sectionals.

"We set higher expectations this year than last year, and our ultimate goal was to win a Sectional title," second year Coach Bryan Hannan said.

After reaching the season goal, the ladies went on to Regionals, suffering a tough loss to Cathedral, 4-1, with Edens being the only one to defeat her competition.

High expectations.

With high expectations, the Warriors kept their heads high and worked hard through-out the season.

To start the season, the Warriors played a tough game against top-ranked Brebeuf Jesuit Braves. After keeping the game tied up until the last inning, the Braves took the win with a walk-off home run.

The team suffered as they went on a 0-4 losing streak, but came back with a big win against Guerin Catholic, 14-0. This boosted the Warriors confidence, keeping their hopes high.

Mid-season, the Warriors went on a three-game winning streak. North Central was the first big win for the team. With the bases loaded, junior Zachary May hit a sacrifice bunt, scoring the last run and putting the Warriors ahead.

This big win brought the team together, giving them two more wins, both to rival, Ben Davis Giants.

Success was expected in the Marion County Tournament since the Giants were up first for the Warriors, but with the ace pitcher on the mound for Ben Davis the Warriors couldn't pull out a third win, knocking them out of the first round.

As the season went on, the team took some more losses, but kept working together to improve.

Preparing for number-one-ranked Center Grove, the boys came out ready to defeat, but made too many errors giving them a loss, 3-8. The next day, the Warriors had to travel to Center Grove to take on the Trojans yet again. This time the team played well and limited to errors, giving them a huge win against the Center Grove Trojans on their senior night.

The team went on to play their last home game against the Lawrence North Wildcats. After starting well with two runs in the first inning, Lawrence North scored one in the second inning and one in the fourth inning. With the game tied, the Wildcats held the Warriors while pulling in three more runs in the sixth inning, ending the Warriors season.

Up first in the sectional was Lawrence Central, who took the win 5-2.

"We had higher expectations than what we achieved," said head Coach Brian Murphy. "We need to work harder on meeting expectations in the future."

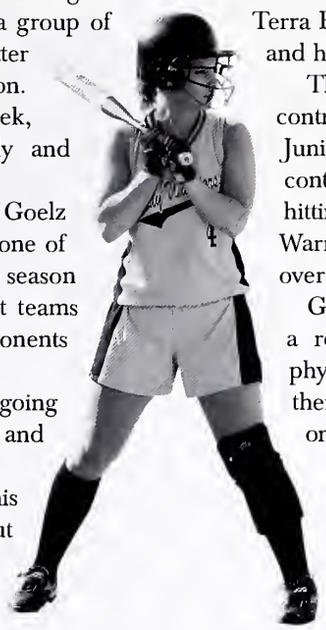
THIRD TIME IS ALWAYS A charm.

All work and no play is a virtue that the lady Warrior softball team lived up to this seson.

The team was coming off strong: six returning, experienced juniors and a group of underclassmen to help build a better base of support for a successful season. With up to four games in one week, the team buckled down physically and mentally.



Third-time varsity player Sara Goelz helped lead the team this season as one of the captains. Goelz is a junior this season and has pitched for several different teams and with a pitch of 60 mph, most opponents can't respond.

"I try to think what the batter is going to do and try to pitch the opposite and get ahead in counts," Goelz said.

She helped defensively this season by making 150 strikeouts. But Goelz was not alone on returning talent. Other fellow juniors, Caitlin O'Brien and Terra Payson, helped to also carry the team and seperate the cliques.

The individual talent was soon molded into a team effort when the lady Warriors faced their biggest rivals, the Cathedral Irish.

There was a fire behind the fight after loosing to a team two years in row. This season, the Warriors were out to take home a win from the Irish. Junior Terra Payson scored a home run for the Warriors and helped to create a fast pace game.

The intensity of the game was being contributed both offensively and defensively. Junior Brook Butler scored a triple and Goelz contributed with three strikeouts. The lady's hitting was a big reason for the success. The Warriors accomplished a well-fought victory over the Irish, 12-2.

Going into Sectionals the team was carrying a record of 6-16 and not to mention how physically exhausted the regular season left them after a normal schedule of four games in one week.

There was more pressure on the ladies still to be faced. The opponent to be played was the Lawrence North Wildcats whom the team had beaten once during regular season, 7-4, and lost to at County, 2-6.

"It was frustrating to loose at Sectionals because we know we have the potential to be a great team. But, you win some and you loose some," O'Brien said.

A WINNING tradition.

Often times being described as All-Americans, or sometimes even with Superman-like qualities, the boys of the Warrior track team collected their earnings as they achieved so much more than they could have ever imagined.

The indoor season was a breeze, and they sprinted towards an indoor MIC title, along with the indoor State title. Soon after earning both titles, the Warriors sent six athletes to New York City for the National meet.

The Warriors brought back five All-American honorees and used this to help motivate them to earn even bigger and better things.

"Being an All-American is something everyone strides after, but to be able to help my team to sectional, regional, or state titles means even more to me," senior Devin Pipkin said. "I like knowing that I helped my team, more than having personal titles."

The team was able to work together, sprinters with distance runners, throwers with jumpers, to overcome their opponents and blow their competition away.

Just a few of their accomplishments include Southport Relay, Warren Relays, MIC, County, Sectional, and Regional champions.

Many records were broken and set as the Warriors steadily improved their own times over the season.

One of the most successful teams the Warriors put together this season was the 4x400-meter relay. The team consisted of sophomore Marquis Collins, junior D'Juan Richardson, and seniors Chris Adkins and Brad Ellington. Throughout the entire season the team was constantly improving their own times and trying to break the state record.

But the most successful relay the team had put together was that of the distance medley relay. The relay team consisted of seniors Adkins, Ellington, Turner, and Ondraius Richardson. The team had the number two time in the state for the season and won every meet they competed in with flying colors.

"I am proud we were able to accomplish all we did this season. My senior year was my most memorable, and I'm glad to get the team where we were with my indivual achievements," Turner said.

With all the blue ribbons and medals the team collected over the season, it would be hard not to notice them.

"This season was one for the records books, and I'm happy I was able to be a part of it with the rest of the team," Pipkin said.

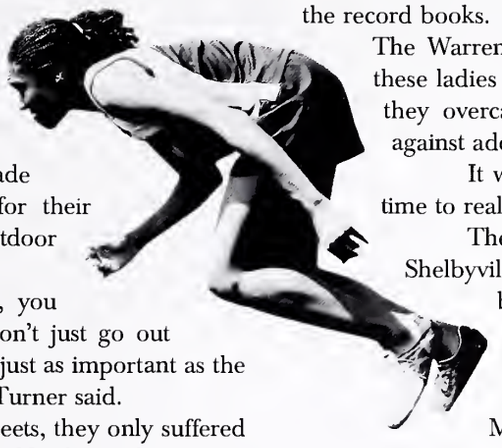
In pursuit for two.

Carrying on a strong tradition has been on the minds of the lady Warrior track team all season.

After being two time runners up, and coming back from a State Championship season, it was no longer fun and games, it was time to get down to business, and do what they were there to do, bring home another State title.



With a young team, and a lot of determination the ladies were laid back as they began their season. They made a successful Indoor season for their selves, so they entered the outdoor season eager and ambitious.

"Track is about passion, you have to want to do it, you don't just go out there and do it. The mental is just as important as the physical," Freshman Breauna Turner said.

In the ladies first three meets, they only suffered one loss. The loss to Lawrence North was by a mere four points and would prove to be the only problem for the ladies this season, because from that point on they showed their competition what was up, and blew them away.

At the Southport Invitation the Warriors put on a nice show winning with 130 points, and several individual champions.

The conference meet was really a time to shine for the ladies, and they defeated the Ben Davis Giants to become MIC champions, adding another one to the record books.

The Warren relays proved once again why these ladies were ranked first in the state, as they overcame all other teams, and once against added a victory.

It was now time for playoff season, time to really put the pedal to the metal.

The Sectional meet took place at Shelbyville High School, and the ladies breezed through this one, beating second place Franklin Central by 48 points, and individual state record was set by Candyce McGrone in the 100 with a time of 11.47.

This set the bar for the Warriors as they went on to then win Regionals, and qualify six individuals, the 4x400 meter relay and the 4x100 meter relay teams.

The 4x800 Meter relay team was a vital part to the lady Warriors track team, and freshman Breauna Turner did all she could to help advance the team. The four girls qualified for state, and consistantly improved their times throughtout their entire season.

Setting her blocks, freshman Tiarriana Herron gets ready for the shuttle hurdle relay during the 43rd Annual Warren Relays meet. The race consisted of four girls spriting over high and low hurdles, which is not an event held in most dual or invitational meets.

CHAMPIONS TIMES TWO.

The boys and girls track teams pulled off a first in Indiana history as they both repeated and became back to back state champions.

"Despite the weather, our girls did the best they could do, and as for being the first school to win boys and girls in consecutive years, that's something to be proud of."

The team poses for pictures after receiving their trophy at the end of the meet. The boys were ecstatic with their repeated dominance.

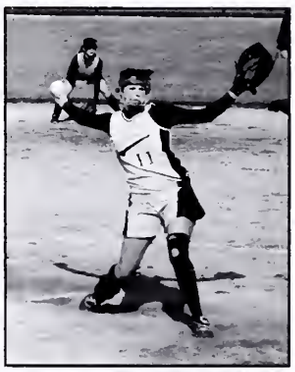
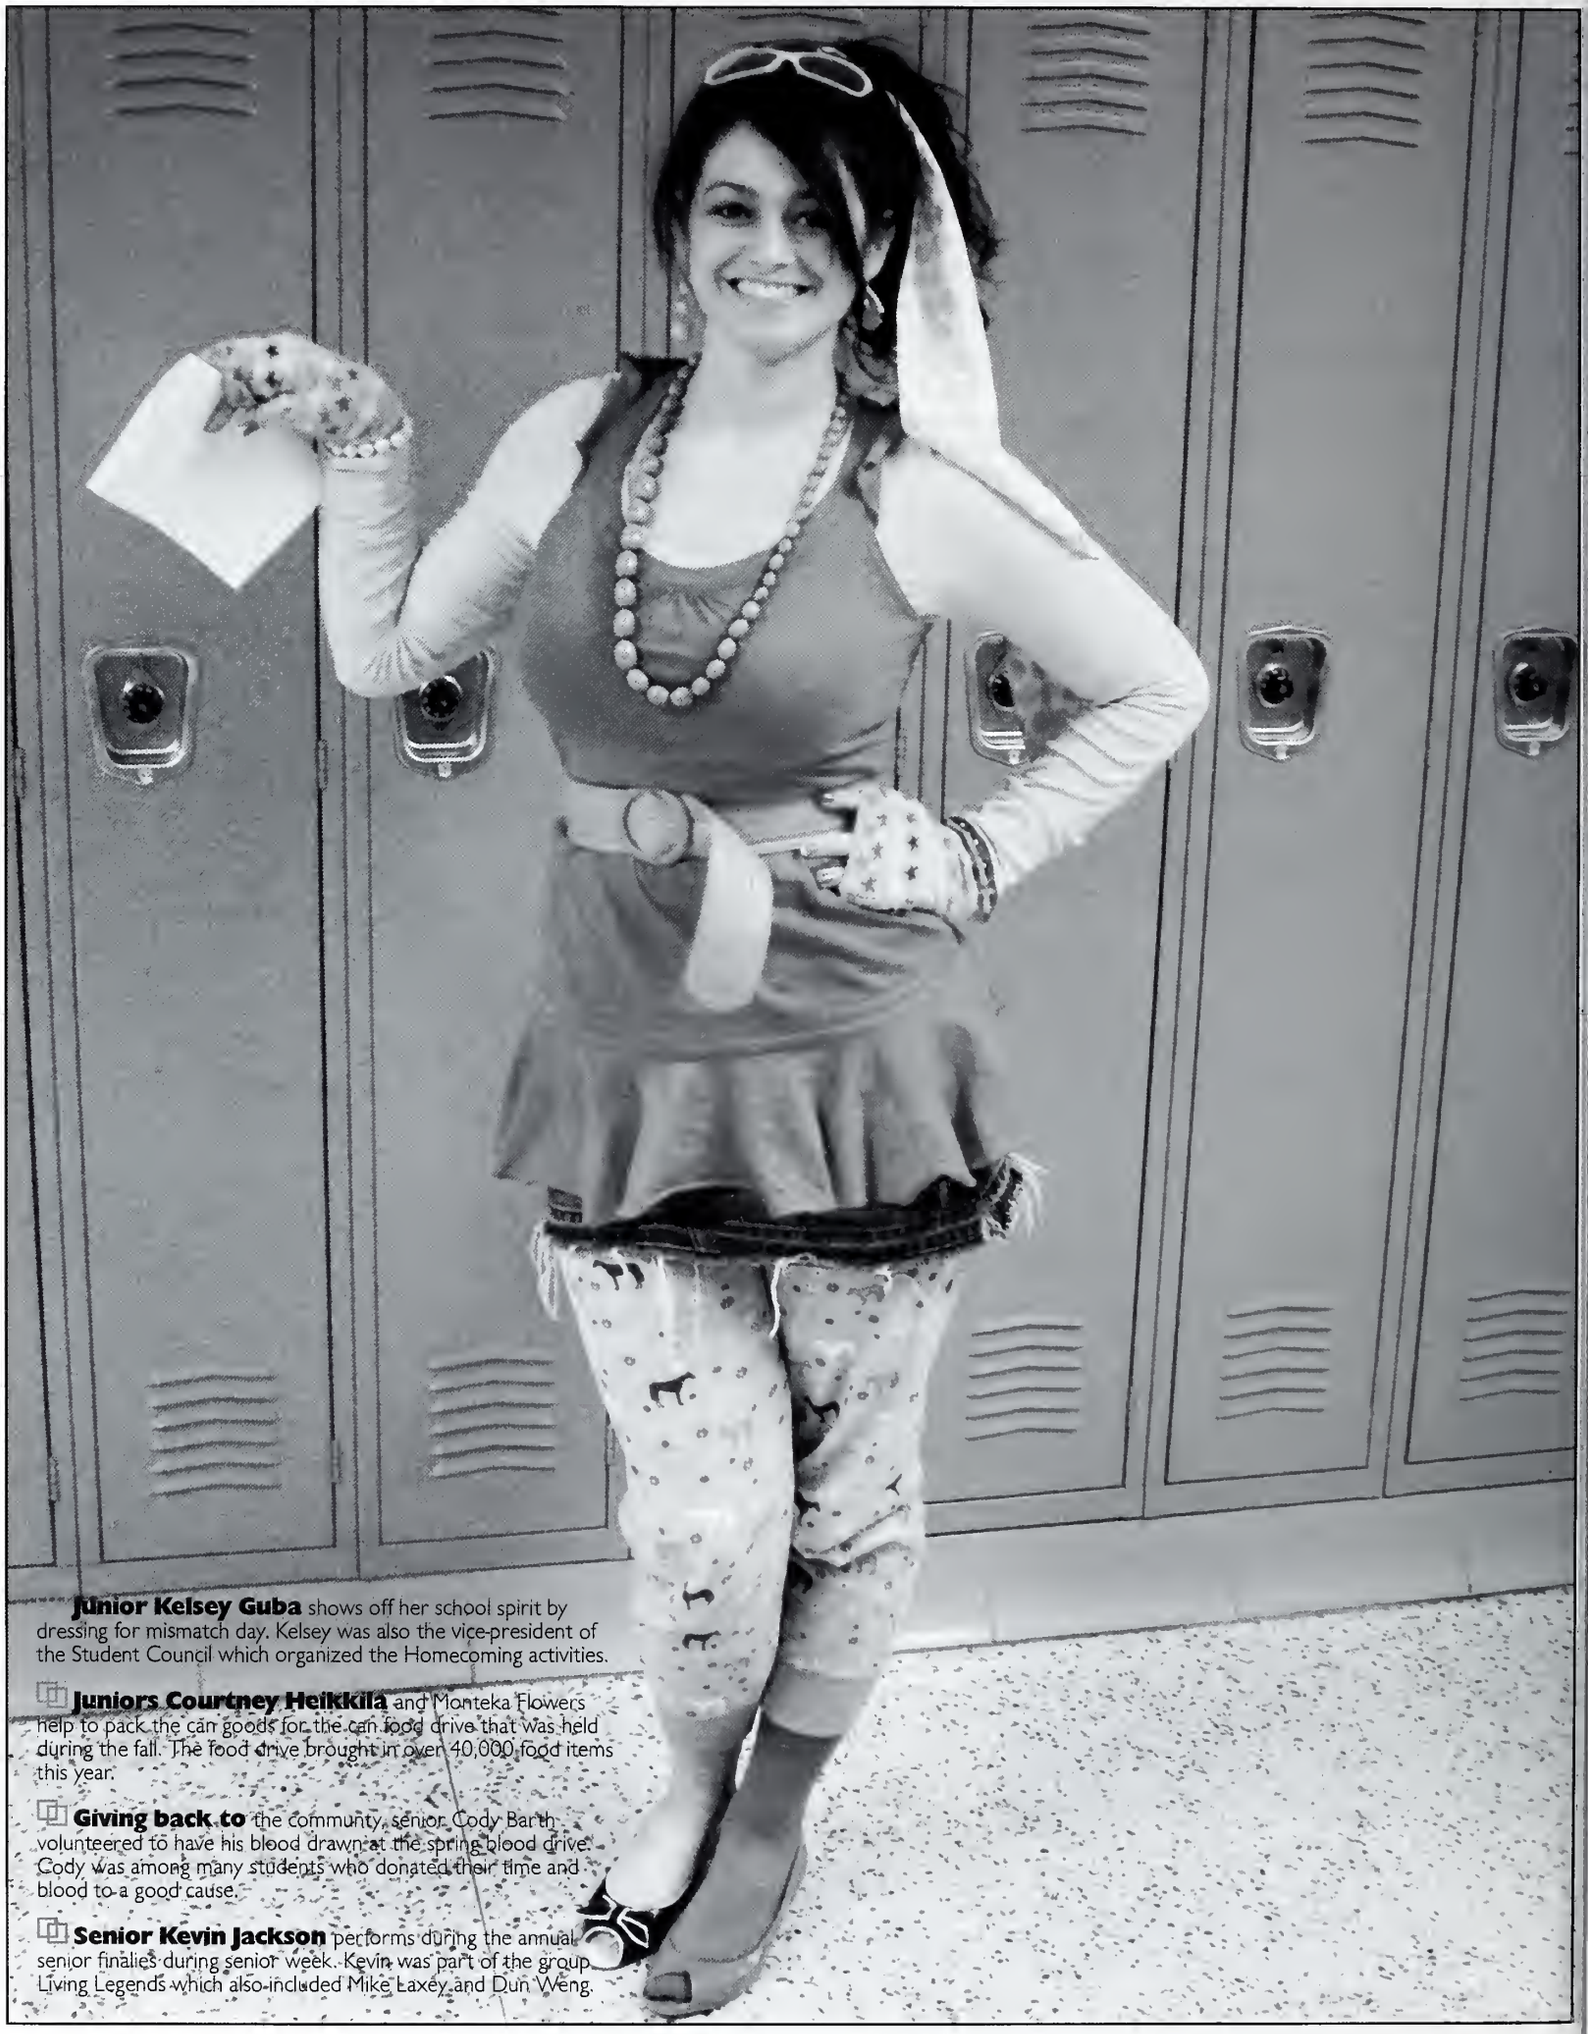
For the first time in Warrior history the boys cross country team brought home a back-to-back State title. Seniors De'sean Turner and Ondraius Richardson got first and fifth place respectively.

After a victory the boys soccer team comes together to celebrate. The team had a winning season of 8-7 and were able to defeat Greenfield Central 2-1 to move on to Sectional finals for the first time in nearly ten years.

Loud and proud, the boys basketball cheerleaders show the crowd some spirit during sectional play at Lawrence North. The ladies cheers helped hype up the fans, in aspects of leading the Warriors to another victory.



Aiming for a strike, junior Sara Goelz pitches a fast curve ball to hopefully strike out her competition. This is Goelz's third year on varsity, where she is constantly proving her place with strike outs, and triumphant wins.



Junior Kelsey Guba shows off her school spirit by dressing for mismatch day. Kelsey was also the vice-president of the Student Council which organized the Homecoming activities.

Juniors Courtney Heikkila and Monteka Flowers help to pack the can goods for the can food drive that was held during the fall. The food drive brought in over 40,000 food items this year.

Giving back to the community, senior Cody Barth volunteered to have his blood drawn at the spring blood drive. Cody was among many students who donated their time and blood to a good cause.

Senior Kevin Jackson performs during the annual senior finalies during senior week. Kevin was part of the group Living Legends which also included Mike Laxey and Dun Weng.

MEGAN MATTINGLY HAS A GREAT OUTLOOK ON BEING STUDENT COUNCIL PRESIDENT

making a difference

Senior Megan Mattingly came to Warren from Holy Spirit unwillingly with a less than stellar attitude about the situation. After four years here, she has had a complete change of heart saying, "I feel like this is the best school in the country." She has been granted one of the fullest, most well-rounded high school experiences a student can be offered at Warren and feels grateful for all the opportunities that she has been able to chase.

Megan's parents have always had high expectations of her—she has been able to keep a high grade point average while still being involved in choir, cheerleading, and Student Council. Freshman year, her parents forced her into choir try-outs, and she loved it. Megan has had a lot of fun getting the crowd pumped up at football games, but the most tell-all part of her high school experience has been Student Council.

As president of Student Council, Megan showed the people around her what she was capable of being. She has flourished and become a better person as a result of successfully putting together Student Council events.

"It has been the best experience of my life," Megan said. She thinks that being the president of such a large, well-known organization has required her to develop a more outgoing personality. Since she used to be so shy, some had reservations about her ability to step up to the plate this year, but she proved to everyone that she could handle the job.

Although she did put a lot of work into Student Council this year, she will be the first to clearly broadcast that there were not only six other officers and two advisors, but 300 Student Council members that made this year such a triumph for her.

"This year has been the best ever, and being [Student Council] president has really made a big impact on my life," Megan said. The experience has made her a better leader, and she thinks she is more prepared to face the world next year now that she has proven to herself and others that she really has the talent to be an incredible leader.

"I am proud to say that I am the president of the largest Student Council in the world. Whenever I talk to people from other schools or attend events they are amazed at our organization."

DANCING WITH THE FACULTY

faculty

"Performing in front of everyone was pretty exciting," senior Brad Ellington said of his win with dance partner, Ms. LouAnne Schwenn, director of the Walker Career Center. A new event was brought into the spotlight this year when the senior class hosted Dancing with the Faculty. Molded by the hit television series "Dancing with the Stars," the event was a huge success and had the audience on the edge of their seats.

The contestants were a pairing of female and male faculty with senior class students. Performing Arts teacher Jon Colby, acting as the master of ceremonies, started the evening with a round of laughs and self-written introductions from the dancers.

The dancers were: Deniece Carmean, bookstore manager and Ondraius Richardson, ninth grade assistant principal Marques Clayton and Brittani Oliver, English teacher Ms. Jenny Duguid and Josh Johnson, Coach Dan Hagist and Maria Watson, Social Studies teacher Ms. Bre England and David Cho, former Wake-Up Warren teacher Mr. Dennis Jarrett and Britny Muehl, Special Services teacher Ms. Jamie Harvey and Anthony Deak, math teacher Mr. Jerry Meredith and Ashley Figueroa, science teacher Mr. AJ McAdams and Amanda Crites, science teacher Mr. Chris Schmidt and Chelsie Baughman, ninth grade academy receptionist Ms. Anitra Tyler and Chris Johnson, and Ms. Schwenn and Brad Ellington.

Some of the dances included the salsa, the cha-cha, the rumba, and a disco. The winners were Mr. Clayton and Brittani and Ms. Schwenn and Brad.

Q: Do you expect HOPE to grow even more in the future?

A: Yes, but I never even expected that it would be as big as it is now. People's generosity, here and in Mexico, is really why it has turned out so well.

Handing out toys to children in Guadalajara: 2006

Q: What inspired you to start HOPE?

A: Ever since I came to the US, I have wanted to be able to help the people back in my hometown, and last year I finally had the opportunity. After I saw the impact of what I did, I was speechless. That is why I keep doing it; I know that it is really making a difference.

Purchasing clothes for children in Mexico: 2006

Q: How has the community helped out?

A: A lot of people have helped out by donating their time, supplies and money. I especially appreciate the teachers and students that have helped me here, but I would still like to get students more involved.

Giving out items in El Refugio: 2006

[FranciscoGomez]

Francisco Gomez, a Spanish I/IV teacher, first began the organization HOPE to help less fortunate people living in his hometown, El Refugio, Mexico, as well as distribute toys and clothes to kids and young adults fighting Leukemia in Guadalajara, Mexico. His impact in Mexico and his organization has even spread to helping needy families in the Indianapolis area. HOPE contributes to the organization Will Power, which is affiliated with Riley Hospital. It also contributes to Invisible Children, an organization dedicated to helping displaced and kidnapped children in Africa. Mr. Gomez's small act of charity has spread to helping those in need all over the world.

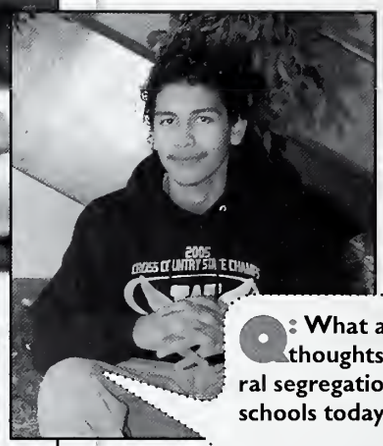
Q: How do you think other people see you?

A: I think most people see me as a silly, goofy person, which is fine because that's how I see myself.

Q: What is important to you in your life?

A: Soccer, track, and cross-country are what I care about the most.



Q: How do you feel about high school now that you've endured being a freshman?

A: Most people look down on freshmen, but I feel great and proud about being a freshman.

Q: What are your thoughts on the "natural segregation" present in schools today?

A: I think that people should be united as one. People are all basically the same and it's stupid to separate yourself from people different from you.

[JavierRodriguez]

Soccer, track, and cross-country are a very big part of my life, especially track and cross-country. Running gives me this incredible feeling and I love everything about it. I run for the track and cross country team here at Warren Central. One of my goals is to become really good at those sports so I can go on to college and be apart of their sports programs. I think that being a freshman at Warren is great, and I love being a part of so many sports and activities. I think high school is very important because it provides a lot of different experiences and opportunities for us and I think it's important for us to take advantage of what it has to offer. I am a pretty laid-back person and my mind is always focused on running. I have a lot of friends and most of them see me as a very funny and silly person. My talents definitely lie in soccer, cross-country, and track. I don't have many fears, but I am afraid of spiders, which just really creep me out. My future goal is to go to college after high school and continue my career in running.

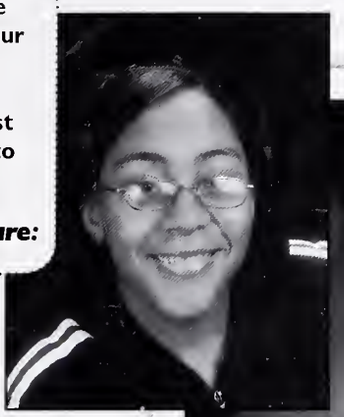
Q: What would you like to accomplish with your life?

A: I want to be the first person in my family to graduate.

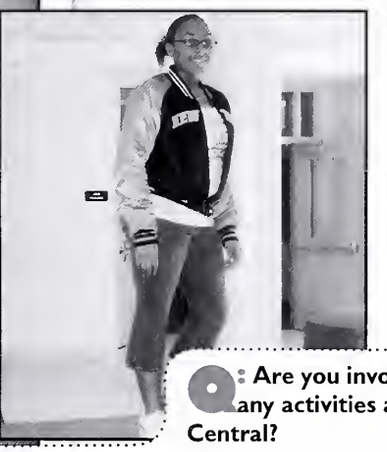
Areal's 6th grade picture: 2003



Q: If you could go anywhere in the world, where would it be?

A: I would like to go to Italy because it seems like there would be a lot of interesting things to see and do there.

Areal's middle-school cheerleading picture: 2003



Q: How has the transition been from middle school to high school?

A: It hasn't been that bad, high school is basically the same as middle school; there are just more people and more work.

Q: Are you involved in any activities at Warren Central?

A: I play basketball, run track, and I'm in summer track and volleyball.

Areal's 8th grade picture: 2005

[AREALHUGHES]

Playing basketball is one thing that I love to do. A lot of times I stay after school and play basketball in the gym, but not all the time. Sometimes I just like to walk around and talk to different people and make new friends. I am a very athletic person, and I usually get along well with people. I believe that I have good taste, and I like to keep up with the latest styles. The most influential person in my life is my mom. She makes it seem as though anything is possible. She has always encouraged me to work hard at everything I do, especially in sports. I play basketball and I run track, and in the summer I play volleyball and run track. In the near future, I hope to finish high school and go on to be successful in college. I would like to do many different, exciting things in my lifetime. One thing I have always wanted to do is go to Italy. Everything I've ever heard about Italy has fascinated me, from the culture and the people to all of the different opportunities that a beautiful place like that has to offer.

All play, no work

[AngieFields]

Q: Describe your personality with 5 adjectives. Why?
A: I would say that my personality is loud, funny, nice, cheerful and silly. I'm usually the loudest one in the group when my friends get together. I can make a lot of people laugh even when they are sad. I'm nice to everyone, unless I have a reason not to be. I'm cheerful and silly because I'm always in a great mood. It takes a lot for somebody to make me mad or upset.

Q: What's your personal definition of 'all play, no work'?
A: My definition of "all play, no work" would be me. It's not that I don't ever do homework or work around the house, I'm just the average teen and like to live life to the fullest.
Q: What's the craziest thing you've done on a dare?
A: The craziest dare I've ever done was when Ashley Peek and I got dared to take my sister's car keys and go get something to eat. So when my sister fell asleep, Ashley and I took her keys and went to Burger King, White Castle, McDonald's, Steak n' Shake and Taco Bell to get food for people who were still awake when we got back. We spent $30 on food and ended up eating it all ourselves.
Q: What is your best memory you have of a party?
A: My best memory I have at a party would be on spring break in Siesta Keys when all of us went down to a beach party. We were meeting a lot of new people and dancing.

[DerrickMack]

Q: What's the craziest thing you've done?
A: "When I was in the eighth grade, I jumped on the lunch table in the middle of lunch and started reppin' my class. I was saying '1-0'."
Q: What's your personal definition of "all play, no work"? Fun?
A: I think that I define "all play, no work." I don't know how to define it in any other way. I think fun is hanging out with friends, being sharp.
Q: What's the craziest thing you've done on a dare?
A: "I was at a party and my friends dared me to get on top of a loud speaker. I got on top of it and started dancing in front of everybody.
Q: Describe your personality with five adjectives.
A: First of all, I would like everybody to know that I am very sharp and I am a person of character. I also am a character too. When I am with my friends I act a fool. I am very silly, energetic and I am very real.
Q: Where are the main places that you hang out?
A: You can almost always find me in the car driving around with my friends and just clowning.

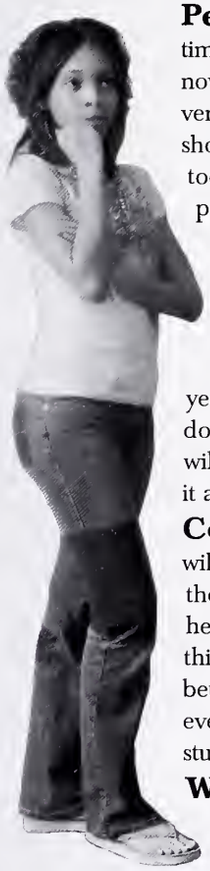
Three Years From Now...

Anesia Ball



Personal: I'm hoping that with time my attitude will change. Right now, I don't really handle problems very maturely and I have a very short fuse, so I don't really tolerate too much and I end up snapping on people. I want to become a better person. I'm hoping that I will be well on my way to becoming a doctor, which means that I will be a very serious student throughout my high school years. I plan on staying focused on doing my best in school so that I will have the opportunity to make it as a doctor.

Community: I think Warren will become more advanced. I think there will be little enhancements here and there that will make things look bigger and better, like better computers for students, or even laptops that are issued to each student for the year.

World: I think the world will stay the same. We've made lots of different changes and advancements, and now I think that we are where we need to be.

Cameron Lynch

Personal: I don't think I'll change. I'll still be funny and smart and goofy, and I'll probably still do stupid stuff. The only thing that I would want to be different is how seriously I take my school work. I hope I will be getting ready to go to college at IUPUI to major in architecture. I plan on taking full advantage of the Walker Career Center so that I can be better prepared.

Community: Warren is already a big school and I think it will grow even more with the new technological advances that should occur. In fact, I think that we will grow so big that we may have to split up into two different schools. I think the second school will be formed because a lot of kids will want to attend. It may be that the Walker Career Center will be expanded into a type of trade school and the regular Warren will be mainly for academics.

World: I think Hilary Clinton will win the presidential election in 2008. Her election should end the war in Iraq, and I think she will seek to peacefully unite the world by incorporating other countries into the United States.

Q: What is your funniest middle school memory?.

A: On our last day of 8th grade, Janie and I ran around and smashed muffins in people's faces.

Q: What makes you different from other people?

A: I think what makes me different from other people is my style and my personality and the way I behave towards people because I always try to be nice to everyone, and I am a very outgoing person.

Q: Whom or what do you value most in your life and why?

A: I value my mom because she's the strongest person ever and I know that she'll always be there for me.

Katrina with her best friend Christine: 2006

Q: Who is your role model?

A: My friend Suzanne York because she always does her own thing regardless of what people think about her and I admire her because of that.

Katrina at a football game: 2006

[KatrinaBiddy]

There are a lot of things that can make a person a part of something big. I think what makes me a part of something big is my style and personality. The way that I act towards people and their reactions towards me is important. I try to be a good person and get along with everyone. I am a fun girl to be around because I am very hyper and outgoing. I love meeting new people, and I always do the things that I like to do regardless of what other people think. There are many other things that are important to me. My mom is without a doubt the most important person in my life. There are so many qualities that I admire in her. She is the strongest person that I've ever known, and I know that she will always be around to support me and encourage me to do whatever I want to do. After high school, I plan to move to New York City and pursue my dream of becoming a journalist. I wish to become an entertainment editor someday.

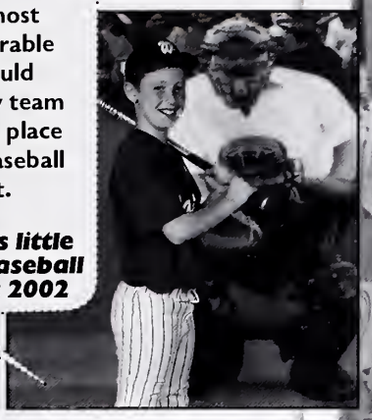
Q: What is your most memorable moment?

A: My most memorable moment would be when my team won second place in a state baseball tournament.

Randall's little league baseball picture: 2002



Q: If there was something about the world that you were given the power to change, what would it be?

A: I would make it so that there would be no more wars and fighting.

Randall in his baseball gear: 1999

Q: What do you think about Warren Central?

A: I think the school is pretty cool. I don't really like all the work we have to do, but I like having the chance to meet people.

Randall playing baseball in his back yard: 2001

Q: Do you have a favorite quote? If so, what is it and why do you like it?

A: "Do it your way." I like it because... well...I like doing things my way.

[RandallSmiley]

Simply put, my life centers around baseball. I've loved the game all of my life. I have played on teams season after season. I play for the baseball team here at Warren Central. One of the proudest moments I've ever experienced was when I pitched a no hitter in a state baseball tournament. I work hard and practice all the time to make sure that I can be the best player I can be. I would like to go on to college and play for their baseball team once I finish high school. When I'm not playing baseball, I'm usually hanging around with my friends or doing my work for school. I think both things are very important and that people should have a balance between the two. School is important because it helps prepare you for what life has in store for you once you leave, so staying focused in school is something that everyone should value. Having friends are important too because they usually shape what kind of person that you will be, and friends can offer you a lot of help and support when you need it.

[FIRST DATE JITTERS]

There are a lot of firsts we experience in our lives, but the first time we go out on a "real" date is one that will always be remembered.

For most, the first real date came around freshman year because the transition from middle school to high school offered more opportunities. We think of ourselves as being all grown up and ready to do things like adults, and when it comes to boyfriends, girlfriends and dating, it is just time for things to get more involved. Holding hands and writing notes at school isn't considered dating anymore.

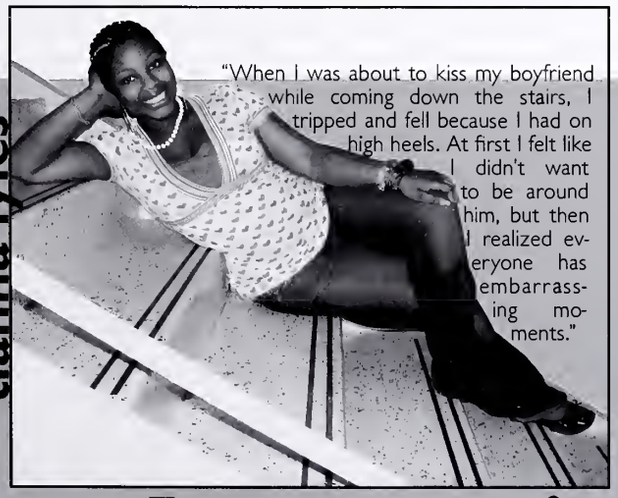
What seems to be the same with nearly every first date is the embarrassment tied to the occasion. Girls try to outclass their everyday selves by wearing make-up that could not possibly be applied correctly, by wearing heels much too high for walking, and consistently babbling throughout the evening.

Boys work to make themselves come off as adult as possible by deepening their voices and taking the liberty to pay for everything with money commonly provided by their parents.

And as much as we want to be grown up and adult, our parents still had to transport us back and forth to wherever it was we wanted to go, which is something we future parents can look forward to doing for our children their freshman year.

embarrassing moments

tianna lyles



"When I was about to kiss my boyfriend while coming down the stairs, I tripped and fell because I had on high heels. At first I felt like I didn't want to be around him, but then I realized everyone has embarrassing moments."

deric johnson

"I was walking with my girlfriend through the double doors, and I ran into the bar in the middle. At first I felt like I was the slowest person in the school, but I realized everyone was laughing so then I was less embarrased."

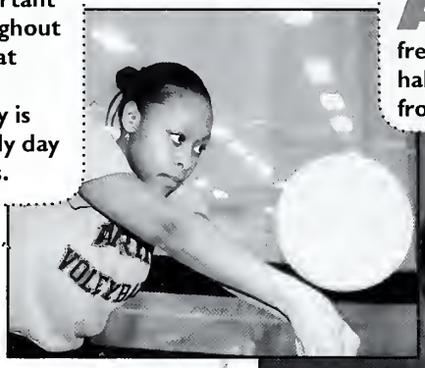
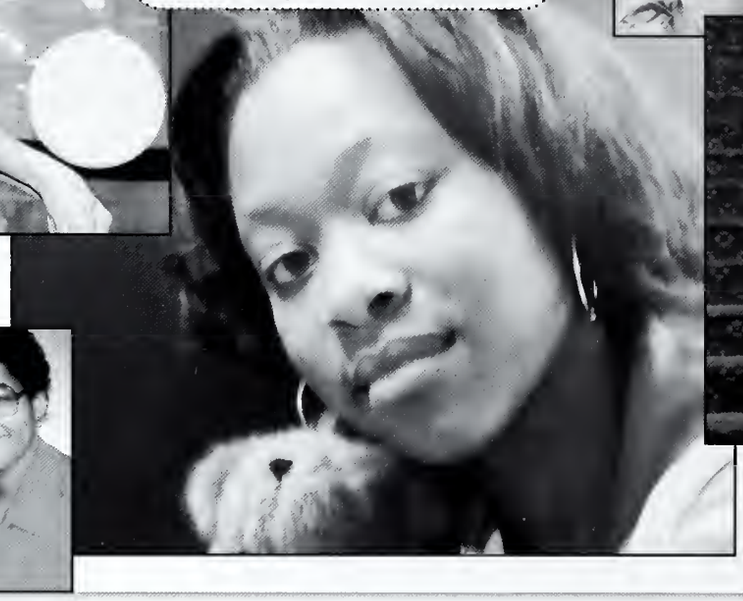
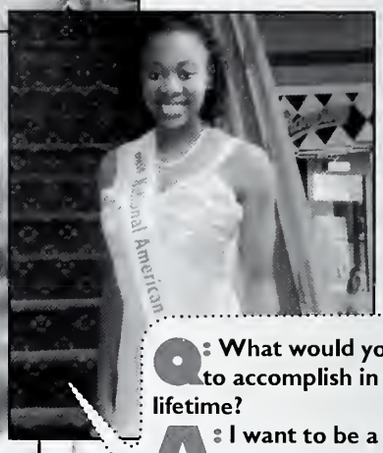
Q: If you could make a phrase to summarize what is important to you throughout your life, what would it be?
A: Today is the only day that matters.



Q: What is an embarrassing moment that you will never forget?
A: One day I was walking down the hallway in the freshman wing and I slipped in the hallway and fell on a big puddle in front of everyone.





Q: What is your greatest fear?
A: My greatest fear is failure. I set very high expectations for myself, and if I do not meet those goals, I feel that I have failed myself.

Courtney with her mother: 1994

[Courtney Williams]

Q: What would you like to accomplish in your lifetime?
A: I want to be a child psychologist, but for right now, I'd really like to graduate at the top of my class. I want to be a psychologist because I have always been able to relate and understand children, and I feel that I'm a kid at heart.

Courtney in the National American Miss Pageant: 2006

I wish to make the best out of my life. I've always set high expectations for myself. when I was young I dreamt of becoming the first African-American female president. I guess what has really affected the choices that I make is when I was once told that I wouldn't amount to anything because I was black. I decided from there on to never let someone's words bring me down. School is also very important to me. I work hard academically, and I was in the top ten of my class last year. My greatest fear is failure, but with my mother's help, I can avoid that. I really admire my mom. She's always been an inspiration to me and she encourages me to fulfill my dreams. Even in the world that we live in today, I try to always maintain a positive view, seeing it as a place that offers new experiences to learn from and enjoy.

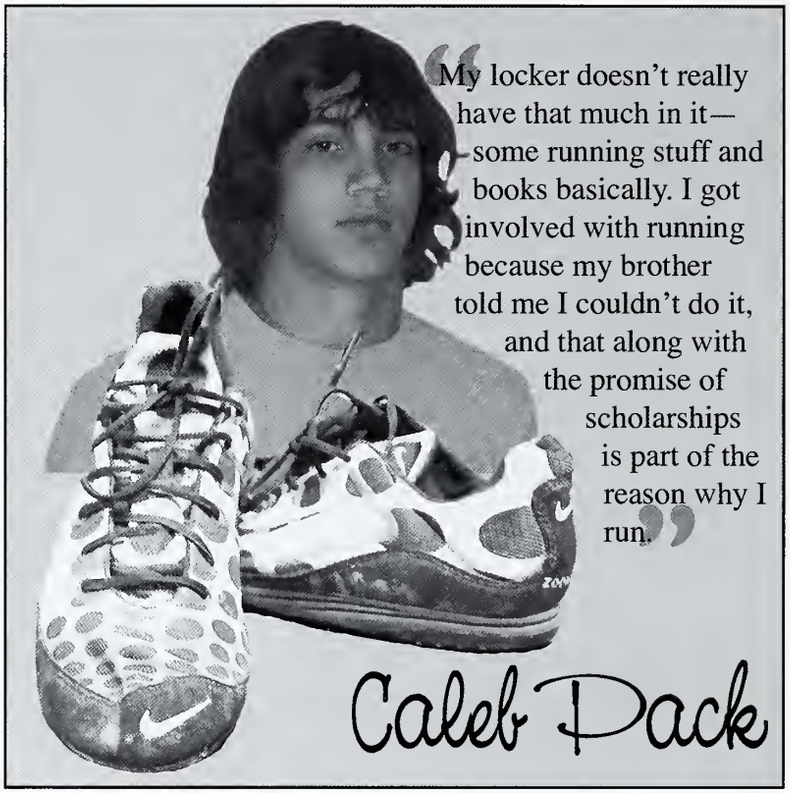
What Does Your Locker Say About You?



"My locker doesn't really have that much in it—some running stuff and books basically. I got involved with running because my brother told me I couldn't do it, and that along with the promise of scholarships is part of the reason why I run."

Caleb Pack

My locker is a mess. I have books and track stuff everywhere, and I have to get in a little time everywhere to maintain good grades and still be able to do everything else.

Doug Ellington

Katie Poole and I share a locker, and we like to be really comfortable. Since the school is cold, it makes sense to bring a banklet. We like to make school as comfortable as possible, and our locker is filled with things to help us

What's Your Locker Like?

I share a locker with my friends because mine is too far away. It does tend to collect a lot of things since there are about six people sharing it. There are lots of textbooks and papers we should really throw away.

Seannon Briscoe

My locker has lots of pix of my friends- especially my senior friends, and things I did over the summer. I do have this pink piece of paper that has a list of all the things I love on it. I made it during finals freshman year.

Abbey Springer

"All of the top of my locker is filled with Connection stuff I have postponed taking home. Connection was the most important thing to me this year. It really got to be a family this year, it's going to be so hard to say good-bye to. I think that keeping all this stuff in the top of my locker has been me in denial of this year being over."

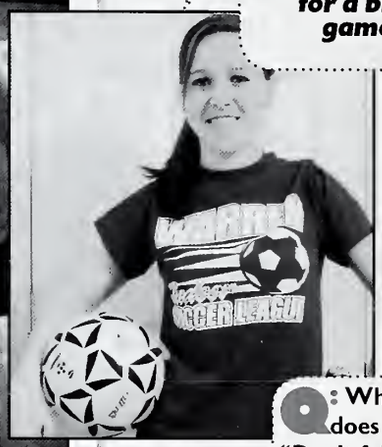
Q:. Do you feel that you had a big role on the soccer team this year?

A: I think my role on the team was helpful.

Jenny getting ready for a big soccer game: 2006



Q: What habit would you like to give up the most?

A: One habit I would like to give up is being shy around unfamiliar people

Taking a picture before cutting down her family's Christmas tree: 2006

Q: What does the quote "Don't follow your dreams chase them" mean to you?

A: To me, it means you have to go after your dreams instead of waiting and hoping they come true.

[JENNY MENDEZ]

Being a part of something big is important, especially at a large school like Warren. Even though I am not involved in much around Warren, I still make a difference on the soccer team. I love soccer; the entire season was one great memory for me. My favorite high school memory so far has been playing on the soccer team. Also, high school in general has been a favorite memory of mine. All of my teachers I have had so far, I think, have helped me along the way in high school. They have all helped me become a better person, but the one I think that stands out most would be Ms. Bush. She is very influential and encouraged me to work hard to achieve my goals. In the future, after high school, I plan to on to college and hopefully play on the soccer team there.

Q: What do you hope to accomplish in your last two years of high school?

A: I hope to have a record in the 400 meters, 4x4, and to go to state and win in track and football and then to graduate.

Q: Name the one thing you can't live without.

A: I can't live without my phone, I'd die if someone told me I could never talk on the phone again.

I feel a big accomplishment I have made was being on the track team, especially when I got onto varsity as a freshmen. I feel as if I was a big part and made a major impact on the track team. I always do my absolute best on the team and my worst fear is if I ever came in fourth place during a race. I'm also involved in a few other sports here at Warren. I'm not only in track, but football and wrestling too. My favorite memory from high school so far is being apart of three major sports at Warren. But I would have to say that I love track the most out of the three. In the future, I even hope to go professional in track and get signed with Nike.

Sophomore Jackie Wiles had the opportunity to make her first trip outside of the country with one of the school's Passport trips. She was able to go Germany, France, Swizterland, and Austria. In each country, she was exposed to new food, unexpected changes, and surprising experiences.

Switzerland

AND..."It was one of the prettiest places I have ever been. The scenery was very beautiful. It was really just extraordinary."

The food in was pretty much the same in Germany and Switzerland. It was a lot like home, but with more variety. This black forrest cake tasted like what I would imagine dry erase marker tastes like because it had some weird alcohol in it.

On Mt. Lucern it was freezing even though it was the middle of summer. I took all summer clothes for the most part and the first week was horrible, but I still had a lot of fun!

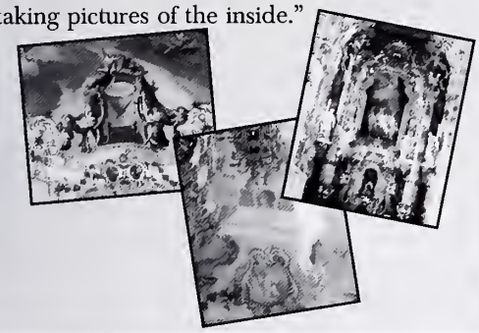
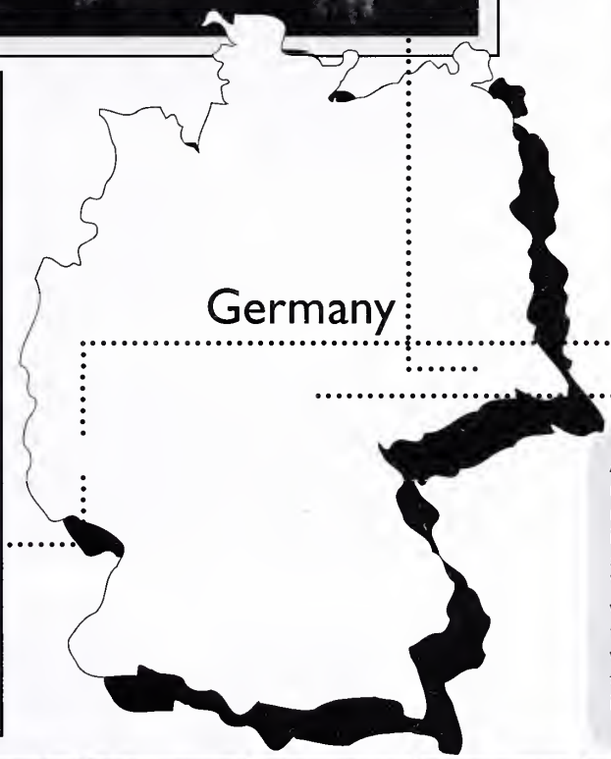
This castle in Neurenburg is the inspiration for Cinderella's castle. "It was absolutely gorgeous, but about half-way through, I realized that we were not supposed to be taking pictures of the inside."



This was the last day of our trip and we just walked around a lot and look pictures of everything. I was really excited to go home, but I knew I was going to miss it a lot, it was a great experience.

Sadly, I don't remember the name of it, but you couldn't take a tour on the inside because it had been ruined in a war several decades ago but the outside was beautiful. This was the view from the castle. Emily and I stuck our feet in the water and all the Germans thought we were really weird. And when we went, we saw a wedding. And we touched a lucky monkey statue too.



AND..."The people we met in Germany were really nice, and they were always interested in who we were and where we came from. When they understood we were from Indianapolis, they thought the Speedway was just this really amazing thing because they were all interested in racing."

QUIZ Sophomores

Q: We're all used to the crazy things that old rockers and, for that matter, young rockers do as well. Keith Richards decided to give us probably one of the strangest rocker mishaps this year. He fell out of a palm tree and had brain surgery as a result. What island paradise was he in at the time?

A: Richards was in Fiji on vacation.

Q: With an "Auf Widershen" I and my fellow judges, as well as the eccentric competitors, made Project Runway into one of the suprise hits of Bravo's TV linup. How many viewers did the season finale pull in?

A: 5.4 million viewers.

www.bravotv.com/projectrunway

Q: In an effort to revive falling ratings CBS revealed that "Survivor" will feature four different teams divided along racial lines: white, black, Asian, and Hispanic. When this decision was made public there was a media storm and several major companies backed out. What steps were taken to pacify the media and win back the sponsors?

A: After two episodes, the teams were integrated. However, this experiment shows that the urge to compete on television for millions of dollars while completely embarrassing yourself shows no color boundaries.

Q: Paris, Lindsay, and Nicole all partied hearty at the hot clubs and ended up getting busted and doing time. By far the most interesting example of celebrity correctional measures belonged to Lindsay Lohan. Which orginization did she tell "People" magazine that she had been in for a year but and hadn't had a drink in seven days?

A: Lohan was in Alcolhics Anonymous. To be fair, those 12 steps are rather hard to keep track of.

Q: "Weeee!" was the cry of many gamers as they all awaited the release of Nintendo's new revolutionary gaming system that uses stick game controlls that give the player a more realistic experience. On the day they were released, stores were flooded with people trying to get their hands on one. On eBay the prices went well beyond the store selling price. What was the highest price of a Wii on that website?

A: Some Wii's ended up costing as much as $7,500 dollars. A good investment considering that avoiding several video game nerds at your local Best Buy fighting over the last Wii is worth its weight in gold.

Q: McSteamy, McDreamy, and all the rest on Grey's Anatomy worked together to make it a really good couple of years for ABC. It has followed Desperate Housewives in ratings for a few years but this year it has pulled ahead into the #1 slot in 9:00 prime time. What was its total viewership that night?

A: It pulled in a staggering 22.4 million viewers.

Q: Knock-offs are a big business in the fashion industry. Logo bags from labels like Coach and Gucci have been copied and put on the market with the fake bags sometimes bringing in more money than the originals. What brand had the most knockoff bags made last year?

A: The French fashion house Louis Vuitton "inspired' the most knockoff bags.

Q: British authorities successfully foiled a terrorist plot to blow up several US bound planes over the Atlantic Ocean. As a result, what cannot be brought on carry on luggage any more?

A: All liquids and toiletries as well as i-Pods, and other electronics are banned from flights because they could conceal liquid or plastic explosives.

Q: The movie "Dreamgirls" contains some of the best success stories in modern cinema. First of all Eddy Murphy revitalized his career in a role of an ageing, "has been" singer that discovers The Dreamgirls. Beyonce Knowles stared as Dina in one of the best performances of the year in addition to putting out B'Day, a ridiculously catchy album containing hits like Deja Vu, and Irreplaceable. But, by far the best success story coming out of that movie belongs to Jennifer Hudson who was voted out of American Idol only to win the Best Supporting Actress Oscar. In addition to the Oscar, what other awards did she win?

www.dreamgirlsmovie.com

A: She won a SAG award, a BAFTA, and a Golden Globe.

Q: What is something that most people don't know about you?

A: Something that most people don't know about me is that, I really like to go shopping, I can't go to the store without buying something.

Mark posing in his fifth grade school picture: 2002

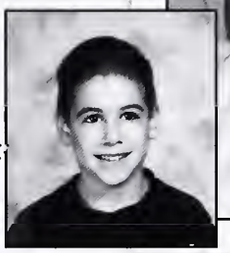
Q: Do you participate in any extracurricular activities or clubs at Warren?

A: The only activity I have time to participate in after school is Intramurals basketball.

Mark in his seventh grade school picture: 2004

Q: Has any teacher at Warren inspired you to do better and if so, who?

A: There are two teachers who have inspired me to do better, one is Mr. Ledbetter because he always used to yell at me telling me, "Go hard or go home," and Mr. Colby because he said, "Don't be scared



Mark in the first grade: 1996

Q: What do you consider to be your biggest accomplishment?

A: My biggest accomplishment I would say is the fact that I'm still in school and I have a job as well.

[MARK SKILLMAN]

Having accomplishments is good and something to be proud of, especially if they are big accomplishments. I think the biggest accomplishment I have made is that I am still in school and I still have my job. Those two together is something I am very proud to have, considering that nothing is better than your education. Accomplishments are good, but so is having a little free time to do whatever you wish. One thing that I really enjoy doing after school lets out is to go shopping. I like shopping and I am always buying something. I also enjoy playing basketball too, however, I'm not that good a player so I just play on the Intramurals basketball team. It's just another thing to add to my accomplishments.

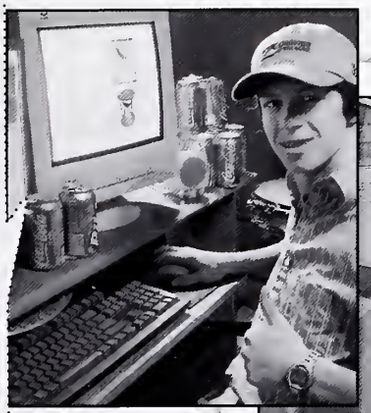
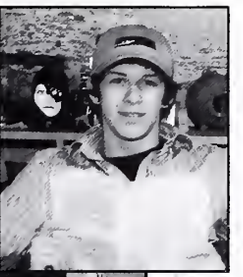
Q: What is the actual name of the Pac Production team?

A: The Warren Central Performing Arts Center's Publications Team or (WCPACPT), we just call it Publications for short.

Chris just chilling at his computer: 2006

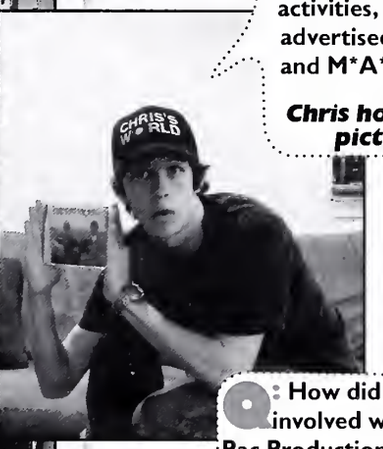




Q: Name the one thing you can't live without.

A: Basically, we advertise for most of Warren's drama performances and activities, so far we've advertised for the AIDA and M*A*S*H.

Chris holding up a picture: 2006



Q: Why did you build your computer?

A: I've always been fascinated by computers, ever since my family got a Windows 95. This year I'm taking year one of computer networking and one of the options in this class allowed students to build their own computer from scratch.

Posing as superman: 2006

Q: How did you get involved with the Pac Production Team?

A: My friends and I got noticed by him because of a short film we made called "Wix Dinnie" for a school project.

Chris just talking on the phone: 2006

[ChrisMay]

I believe making an impact on something can make someone a part of something big. Computers and modern day technology have influenced me to make an impact. Computers have always fascinated me ever since my family got a Windows 95 when I was younger. Some classes at Warren have even helped me to make my own computer. The class I took that helped me with computers is Computer Networking. Computer Networking is a two-year, two-period class in the Walker Career Center. The class is only for juniors and seniors, but I was recommended by Mr. Saffold to get in a year early. I love the class and love working with computers; I hope to pass the certification exam and continue in my career with computers.

Q: What is your biggest pet peeve?

A: Just people who have high-pitched voices get on my nerves.

Amber holding Pink Panther: 2006

Q: What is your worst fear?

A: I think my worst fear would be that if I failed at anything at all. That would be horrible.

Amber hanging with friends at a football game: 2006

Q: What quote inspires you the most?

A: "Be smart, not stupid."

Amber posing in a festive costume: 2005

Q: What habit would you most like to give up?

A: Probably being too judgemental, since I have a habit of judging a lot of people.

Amber hanging out with her friend: 2006

How am I a part of something big at this school? Well, for one, I am an exchange student and in the exchange student program and I am involved in some of clubs around the school. I am a member of the Just Say No club and Student Council. Most of all, though, I am just all into school spirit! I also do a lot of things outside of school too. One thing I like to do in my spare time is Irish dancing. I even compete in a lot of Irish dance competitions. The competitions are so much fun, even though they are all mostly the same. Another thing I do in my spare time is just hang out with my friends. We usually hang out at the house or go to the movies. I'm also involved with a choir outside of school, so I do a lot of singing. My future plan after high school is to go to a college and have a successful career.

What's In Your Purse?

Aimee Haynes, junior

"My purse is from Old Navy and I got it for Christmas; I love it because it's slouchy and it can fit all my stuff in it."

Q: Why do you bring deodorant to school?

A: I use it during 1st period.

Q: Have people ever said anything to you because you keep hand sanitizer in your purse?

A: There was one kid that actually said I was weird and too clean.

Hannah Godby, sophomore

"I got my purse from H&M and I chose it because of the bright red color and the heart on it."

Q: Do you find yourself frequently using your nasal spray?

A: Usually I use it once a day or whenever my nose feels stuffy.

My purse is from New Orleans and my mom got it while she was on a cruise. I wear it occasionally but it just depends on my mood.

Q: When do you do your word search?

A: I do it sometimes when I am bored at school or I've finished all my work.

Q: Where in the world did you find chapstick that big?

A: Aimee Haynes bought it for me at Wal-Mart.

Having goals contributes a lot to making someone be "a part of something big" at this school. The goals don't necessarily have to be long term, like what you want to do in life, but having short term goals are good and nice to have. I think that if you have no goals at all, it eventually shows. It is good and pretty important to have goals to know what you want to be in life. Also, being different helps too. I try to be and look different from everybody else no matter where I am. In my spare time, though, I do a few things. I like to draw anime and manga, which people say I am very good at it. I also play video games that I can't seem to grow out of. I like to play my guitar, get on Myspace and do aikido, too. In the future, after high school, I either want to become an anime and manga artist, or I want to make video games for a living. I think doing those things are fun, so why not get paid to have fun?

Q: What made you want to start styling hair? Was there any type of influence from your family?

A: My mother is the main reason that I enjoy styling hair. She has encouraged me and helped me in styling hair and working in the cosmetology department. She even supports my decision in making this my career.

Q: How many hours a day do you do hair?

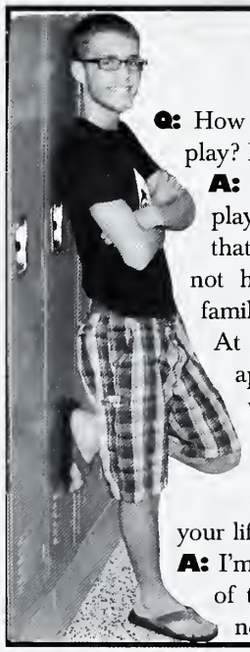
A: During school I am in the cosmetology department for four hours, and at home I actually have clients that I work on a daily basis.

Q: How has the cosmetology program helped you? Do you see styling hair in your future?

A: Cosmetology has helped me in so many ways. Many people believe that we only work on hair, but we go through so many things to get to that level and we also work on nails and skin. I hope that in the very near future I will have my own salon.

Q: What is the worst thing about having such a busy schedule?

A: Stress, but stress comes with any job because some clients are nice where as others have attitudes or they're very picky or don't like what you do to their hair and it takes several times for some clients to trust in your ability to get the job done. When I deal with stress, I try my best to cope with it, but sometimes it's because people want their hair done in difficult ways, and when I can't do it, I get upset and try to suggest other hair styles to them.



StephenKoch

Q: How would you define All work, no play? Do you think this applies to you?

A: My definition of "all work, no play" means constantly doing things that can be highly involved and then not having enough time for friends, family, and most importantly, myself. At times, I do think this quote can apply to me. During the "hell week" of musicals and plays that I'm constantly involved in, this most definitely applies.

Q: What part does stress play in your life?

A: I'm most likely thinking ahead a lot of the time. I'm thinking about the next day, the next week, the next performance, the next rehearsal, the next audition; I'm always thinking ahead but most of the time I'm stress free. I love to listen to Shoshana Bean, who is a Broadway actress/R&B singer. Her music is calming and relaxing.

Q: What's bad about having a busy schedule?

A: I have gradually became less and less close with my family as the years have gotten busier. I am not home a lot, which is hard. Sometimes I just want to be home, in my bed, with my dog Smokey, just being lazy old me! Sometimes, I just have to take a minute or two and excuse myself from reality and just relax and refocus.

[MICHELLESPENCER]

I think I am a part of something big at this school because I am a big help to people, and I am a good friend. I like to help where I am needed and when I can. People tell me that I am a big help to them and that I am a good person to be around. Being a part of something big, to me, is being a good, helpful friend. I'm involved in a lot at school. I am in Symphony Orchestra, National Art Honors Society and Japanese Club. I'm also in some things outside of school too. I'm president of the township 4H Junior Leaders, president of the County Junior Leaders and the County Representative. In my spare time, I train my dog, do woodwork, play games, read, draw, volunteer and clean house. I try to find time for my hobbies too, which are drawing, painting, viola, carving and woodworking, writing, reading, listening and collecting bunnies. My future plans after high school are to get a degree in physical therapy and hopefully travel to Japan one day with my friends.

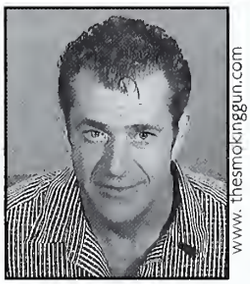
QUIZ Juniors



www. thesmokinggun.com

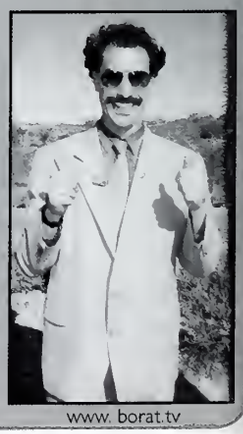
Q: Mel Gibson was busy last year; his controversial Mayan movie "Apoclypto" garnered a respectable $15 million at the box office. But he will be remembered for his drunken anti-Semitic rant in what sunny seaside town?

A: Malibu.

2 Q: Soccer burst onto the face of the US sporting world thanks to the Soccer World Cup and soon everyone was talking about who was beating who. Probably the most talked about incident in the World Cup was probably during the finals between Italy and France. What happened?

A: Zinedine Zidane head butted a player on the Italian team for a ill placed "yo-mama" joke. The French lost the World Cup game on penilities caused by this.

3 Q: Borat, the Kzakhastani reporter who is brought to life by Sacha Baron Cohen, became one of the biggest movie sensations of 2006. During the movie he showed us what we looked like and it wasn't always the most pretty. By far one of the most embarrassing moments caused a law suit against Baron Cohen by whom?



www. borat.tv

A: The drunk frat boys sued Baron Cohen for defamation of character and lost.

Q: From lonleyhearts 115 to Japanese Karaoke Game Shows we have been entertained, amused, and revolted by what is on You Tube, You Tube has singularly revolutionized the American social landscape by making it possible for millions of people to download things to the internet and sharing it with everyone. How many videos are downloaded every day?

A: 100 million videos are uploaded onto You Tube every day.

5 Q: When Daniel Craig became the new James Bond in "Casino Royale," critics were already knocking him down because this new blond Bond hadn't even driven a stick shift and didn't have the prerequisite marquee name. However, they were wrong and Daniel Craig won praise for his newly reinvented portrayal of 007. How much did Casino Royale make at the box office?

www. jamesbond.com

A: $418 million dollars was made in international box office receipts.

6 Q: Stephen Colbert has brought humor back into the news room with one of TV's most irreverent talk shows and upstaging his original home of "The Daily Show" with campaigns against dimes because FDR was a "tax-loving mental cripple" and spicing up the 2006 White House Correspondents dinner by roasting President Bush. Arguably, Colbert's biggest contribution to pop culture however is a word that was voted by Merriam-Webster as the word of the year? What is it?

Q: What are some of your pet peeves?

A: People clapping at the end of movies and stupid questions.

Q: What is your worst fear?

A: Having bad breath probably scares me the most.

Greigh hanging outside downtown: 2006

Q: Name one thing you could not live without.

A: I couldn't live without my iPod; I love music.

Greigh messing around with plastic spoons: 2006

Q: What habit would you most like to give up?

A: I would give up my habit of singing out loud randomly.

[GreighDavis]

Being involved in a lot around Warren Central is one good way to make yourself stand out in a crowd. It makes you "a part of something big" and can make you more known around our large school. To start, taking many extracurricular activities and getting into different sports and clubs is a good way to make yourself "a part of something big." I'm involved in a few things around the school myself. I run cross-country and track, and I take part in Robotics, too. Since I'm in all of those things, I don't usually have much spare time. When I do have time, though, I'm either chillin' with some friends or doing my hobbies, which are camping and watching movies. In the future, after high school, I plan to go to Purdue and get a degree in Mechanical Technical Engineering.

Q: What has the experience of living in America been like?

A: It has been great; even though it is not east all the time I really enjoy being here.

Christin and Amber Patton at the homecoming dance

Q: Give a personal quote about yourself.

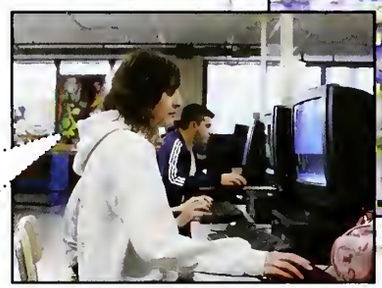
A: "Friendship..... is not something you learn in school. But if you haven't learned the meaning of friendship, you really haven't learned anything." Muhammad Ali

Q: What is your goal in life? Explain.

A: There are a couple; I would like to have a family when I'm older and a nice job. But first I want to see the world. I would like to go to Africa and help the people who need help.

Q: Who do you look up to?

A: My parents, they're just great, they do so much for me and I'm really thankful and glad to have them.



Christin working in photography class

[CHRISTIN MERGENTHALER]

Coming to America has been a great experience and although at times it has not always been easy I enjoy being here. The people I look up to most are my parents because they do so much for me and I feel really grateful to have them in my life. My ultimate goal in life is to have a family and a nice job when I'm older, and I would also like to travel to Africa and help the people in need of help. One of my favorite American traditions is Thanksgiving because of the food, and it's a time of thanks. By coming to America I have learned about new traditions and customs that have become important to me and my family. Helping people makes me happy, and it feels good to help those in need.

QUIZ Senior

Q: One of the most popular accessories last year wasn't a Louis Vuitton bag or a petite pooch. What did celebs like me, Gwen Stefani, and Heidi Klum all want?

A: They all wanted babies.

Q: Fashion was big in the movies in '06. In "The Devil Wears Prada" the story of Andy Sachs' year of servitude to her terrible boss Miranda Priestly at the fashion magazine 'Runway' was based off of author Lauren Weisberger's experiences at what magazine?

A: Vogue. Apparently editor and chief Anna Wintour is as steely as she seems.

Le Tour de France

Q: After Lance Armstrong's astounding 7 time winning streak in the Tour de France it was time for Floyd Landis to step up and take the first prize in Paris. What illegal drug was he accused and later proved to have used during the race?

A: Landis was using testosterone to recover after he became fatigued.

iPod

Q: i-Pod, you-Pod, she-Pods, he-pods, we all pod. What milestone did i-Tunes pass in 2006?

A: The billionth song was downloaded.

Q: In the fashion world today, branding is everything. Polo shirts sporting teensy animals from Abercrombie & Fitch's moose to Ralph Lauren's classic polo player have become part of standard branding. Which clothing company started this trend?

A: The Lacoste alligator invented by the brand's founder, tennis player Renne Lacoste, who was nicknamed "The Alligator."

Q: The Oscars came many people went home happy. Helen Mirrin won best actress for her superb portrayal of the Queen, and "The Departed" won for best picture. Plus, Martin Scorsese finally won a best director Oscar. How many times has he been nominated?

A: He has been nominated for seven Oscars.

Q: She doesn't have a Nobel Prize, didn't pen a peace treaty, or even have a hit song. All she did was go without her underwear a few times. Which celebrity that fits this description was the most popular search term on Yahoo! in '06?

A: The former princess of pop turned trailer trash tabloid fodder, Brittney Spears. One can only wonder if all the bald pictures of her that people are looking up will secure her a place again this year.

Q: British authorities successfully foiled a terrorist plot to blow up several US bound planes over the Atlantic Ocean. As a result, what cannot be brought on carry on luggage any more?

A: All liquids and toiletries that could conceal plastic or liquid explosives.

Q: "My Very Educated Mother Just Served Us Nine Pizzas." This acronym for the names of the seven planets has been taught to elementary students in the United States for recent memory. What planetary event has now rendered this acronym incorrect?

A: Due to the fact that Pluto is the smallest planet, a panel of scientists has determined that it now does not meet the international standard for planetary status. Now my very educated mother can just serve nine.

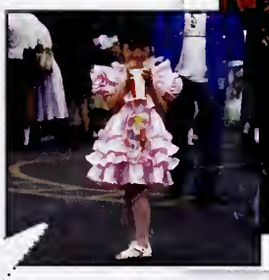
Q: What will you do on your 18th birthday?

A: For my 18th birthday, I will most likely go out to dinner with my family of 25 and have at least one thing go wrong for old times sake. Oh yeah, and I will probably spend a lot of money on lottery tickets.

Q: Name a personal quote about yourself.

A: "Work hard, Play hard!"



Q: What are some of your hobbies?

A: I'm rather a boring person. Give me a movie, a CD, or an evening at Starbucks and I am good to go! I am also a card/board game junky. I love Poker, Lucky Thirteen, Phase 10, Monopoly, Risk, and the list can go on.

Liz standing in the middle of the San Diego County Fair 1995

Q: What do you value most in life?

A: I value three things most in life: family, friends, and education. Family and its quirky traditions first. Friends are always there to raise my spirits when they're down.

[ELIZABETH TIEN]

I value my family, friends, and education the most and think that my family is just as ordianary as any other family. I am one of the most incredibly untalented people you could ever meet. I can sing mean renditions of any classics in the shower. I'm also really good at nail care and such. Most missed memory is of Cirque du Soleil's Delirium at Conseco Fieldhouse March 2007. It was the most amazing experience ever! I am a Warren Central Ambassador, German club member, and I am also invovled in Project S.E.T. as well. My education is so unbelievably important to me, that I have been inspired to become a teacher and motivate students to value education too!

Bachelor and Bachelorette Auction

Marcus Carroll and Dexter Smith get ready to be auctioned as a pair. They were one of two pairs who were auctioned together and sold for $50.

While waiting for the bids to start, Brad Ellington struts his stuff across the stage. Once the bidding began, the price for Brad rose faster than gas prices. In just four minutes, he topped $100, the most of any guy.

Standing side by side, Talyssa Cuffee and Heather Savage hope as one of the special pairs deals that they will bring a lot of money. The winning bidder in each sale received a coupon for a dinner at CiCi's and a free game of bowling at All Star Bowl.

Posing with a yellow flower, Britny Muehl waits for the bidding to begin while Mr. Kent, the show's MC, reads off the characteristics Britny looks for in a guy. She was the top seller for the girls, going for $100.

Q: What do you like most about being an adult?

A: Staying out as late as I want even if I get pulled over by the cops.

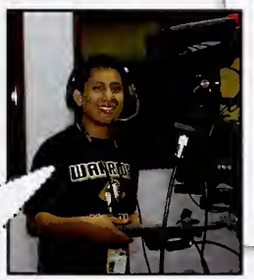
Armando editing a tape of the morning show.

Q: Name one thing you are looking forward to.

A: Vacation this summer to my hometown in Los Angeles.

Q: If you were a crayon what color would you be?

A: I would be sunshine yellow in honor of my favorite childhood cartoon character Pikachu.



Armando taping the morning announcements.

Q: Give a personal quote about yourself.

A: "Education is the most effective form of rebellion."

[ARMANDO ARREOLA]

My goal in life is to discover myself and be inspired by the masses. A few activities that I am involved with are wrestling, cross country, Key Club, NHS, Student Council, and WCTV. My hobbies include partying, hanging out with friends, playing basketball and soccer in good weather and working on my small, personal computer repair business. I plan to attend ISU in the fall and major in political science. I am also looking foward to discovering more opportunities and opening doors to a bright future. Two interesting facts about me is my first name Zosimo means lively, and I am a Zapotec Mexican, an indigenous people in Southern Mexico.

Seems like only yesterday our little girl was in kindergarten. Now you're a beautiful young woman with a future wide open. Remember to always stay true to yourself. We will always be here for you. Congratulations!

I'll love you forever,
I'll like you for always,
As long as I'm living,
My baby you'll be.

Love always,
Mom and Dad

[ChristinMergenthaler]

It's been a pleasure having you join our family for this year. From Chicago to "Christmas in New York" to the Grand Canyon in Arizona! We look forward to staying in touch and visiting you and your family soon!

[CaraBurchett]

Oh, the places you'll go! There is fun to be done! There are games to be won and the magical things you can do with that ball will make you the winning-est winner of all!

Cara, we love you! Your family!

[De'SeanTurner]

We are so proud of you. Congratulations on all of your accomplishments. We are very blessed to have you as a son. Keep running and good luck at IU.

We love you,
Mom, Dad,
and Breauna

[WhittleyLewis]

It seems like only yesterday.

[Matt Anderson]

Matthew,

We can't believe you're in your last year of high school. You have made us so proud of everything you have done and are doing now. From all the academic success you have achieved, to all the sports you have played, to just being the wonderful young man you have grown into. We will always love and support you. Remember, as we and many of your teachers have said, "You will succeed in whatever you choose to do."

We love you very much,
Mom, Dad,
And Samantha

[Chelsie Baughman]

Chels,

Where have these eighteen years gone? You've grown from that adorable little girl who could smile and melt our hearts to a beautiful young woman who has proven that with hard work and determination you can achieve your goals.

As parents we will always be here to support you. We are so proud of you. Continue to work hard and stay the course.

We are blessed with you.
Love,
Mom and Dad

[Angela Smithey]

Once you were small, now that you're grown, we wonder where all the time has gone.

We are so proud of you!
Love always,
Mom, Dad,
And Tyler

BrittaniOliver

You were a joy from the moment we knew that you were going to be a part of our family, and you have only brought us love and happiness. We love you and wish you all the best with all your endeavors. Thanks for all the happy times, sometime sad times, but most of all for all of the wonderful journeys that you have allowed us to share with you. We are very excited and are looking forward to even more journeys with you.

ChaseBrackin

Chase,

You are our greatest miracle. It is a true honor to call you our son and a privilege to watch you change from the little boy in Daddy's work shirt to the incredible young man you are today. You are a gifted soccer player, a dedicated student, and a loyal friend. Words can never express how proud we are of you. May all your dreams come true in college, on the soccer pitch and in life!

We wish you enough!
Love,
Mom and Dad

Congratulations, Chase!
I will really miss playing soccer with you.
Go Team Bus!
Love,

[Anthony Deak]

Anthony,

The day you were born was the best day of my life and I cherish every moment we have had together. Words cannot express how proud I am of the kind, caring, compassionate young man you have become and of all your achievements and accomplishments over the past 12 years. I greatly admire all that you are and all that you've done; for always being a leader and standing up for your beliefs. No matter what path you choose to follow in life, I know that you will succeed. You truly are my raison d'etre.
You stay classy, Anthony Deak!

I love you,
Mom

[Emily Bemis]

Congratulations,

We are proud of all you have accomplished and know you will always do well. Remember that graduation is not the end; it is just the beginning.

Love,

Mom and Dad

[KaitlynSweeney]

You've blessed your family all these years. Now it's our turn to share you with the world. We couldn't be more proud.

Love,

Alex, you've done well. We love and congratulate you.

You have brains in your head.
You have feet in your shoes.
You can steer yourself in any direction you choose.
You're on your own.
And you know what you know.
You are the guy who'll decide where to go.

-A Love Letter to Our Lovie-

The first time we ever saw you, you overwhelmed us. We knew you were beautiful and special. We later discovered the familiar traits of myself and your dad but we saw you were your own independent little lady. Lovie, the road has been long but never has it been so hard. You have carried your responsibilities with such grace and maturity. We could never express just how proud we are of you.
As we thank God for this first leg of your race in life, we look forward to the rest. God trusted us with your life for a season and now he is trusting you.

Congratulations, Lovie

To the Class of 2007,

You are each unique and have different goals and aspirations. Whether you become a social worker, doctor, teacher, or auto mechanic, you can influence the lives of others in a positive way. Something as simple as a smile can make a difference to one person. When you do this daily, you will slowly change your community. Just imagine how the Class of 2007 could unite to change the world.

I have a scrapbook in my mind filled with the smiles of the Class of 2007. Those smiles have truly made a difference in my life. I hope that each of you has your own scrapbook filled with smiles and memories of great times you experienced during your years here at Warren Central.

To the officers: I will miss my girls. On days when I need a little lift, I will remember so many good times together and laugh out loud. Thank you for your leadership and hard work.

Thank you Class of 2007 for allowing me to create such an incredible scrapbook.

Love,
Ms. Widgren

[Senior Class]

The class of 007 would like to thank Ms. Widgren for her hard work, creativity, and commitment to the senior class. This year has been full of great senior memories, and they never would have taken place without her. Many of her deeds go unseen, but they are not unappreciated.

The ladies of Senior Council know firsthand the dedication that Ms. Widgren shows to the Senior Class. We would like to say we appreciate you and everything you have done for us and the class of 2007. This year would have never been the same without your assistance, and the council would be lost without you. We could not ask for a better advisor.

Thanks for the great ideas and fun times. We are honored to have you as the "Senior Class Mom."

THANK YOU AND WE LOVE YOU!!!

At 244 pages, the 2007 Warren Wigwam yearbook was the BIGGEST for the school and why shouldn't it since everything it covers, everything inside was so BIG. Herff Jones printed 650 copies of the 70th volume of the Wigwam. Yearbooks were sold at an "early-bird" price of $40, a regular price of $45 and a final price of $50 in the late sale. Cathy Wines was the Herff Jones representative. Mark Haab served as the yearbook advisor and Publication director. Tony Burchett was the principal. LaTisha Plummer served as yearbook editor-in-chief and Courtney Sholar was the associate editor. The book was printed on 80 pound matte paper and all page layouts were created with Adobe InDesign and Photoshop software and designed by the Wigwam Staff using Macintosh G4 and eMac computers. This was the second year senior pictures were printed in color and a limited number of senior ads were offered in color.

Photography-
Most photos were taken by staff photographers using a Nikon D100, Minolta Dimage 7, and Nikon Coolpix 5700. Prestige, our official school photographer, provided sports group pictures and some special event coverage.

Typography-
Headline and caption fonts were from the Chantilly family. Accent fonts were Chantilly UB. Body copy was set in the Baskerville family 10 point.

Cover-
The initial cover was designed by the editors and staff members. Simple black with gold accents sticks with Warren's traditional school colors. The words on the cover reflect and this page represent some of ways Warrren was BIG. They were printed with a varnish instead of ink to give them a subtle background on the flat black cover. To continue the BIG theme, the names of the over 3,900 students who were part of this BIG year and BIG school are printed on the endsheets.

Workshops-
Students attended Indiana University Summer Workshops, Ball State's J-Day, and the JEA/NSPA National Convention in Nashville. The staff also attended the Indiana High School Press Association State Convention at Franklin College where the 2006 Wigwam was a Hoosier Star Finalist.
